State Opens New Battle Against Withers Brothers Packing House

SHIPMENT OF GRAPEFRUIT BLOCKED

Court Moves to Have Friut Condemned or Reconditioned

Court battles between the state and Withers Brothers, Placentia citrus packing house, re-opened today on a new front, as District Attorney W. F. Menton moved to condemn a carload of grapefruit state inspectors assert is below legal sugar content.

In a court action directed against 134 boxes of grapefruit, the state seeks condemnation or reconditioning of the fruit, which it alleges was being shipped in violation of the state agricultural code.

Victor in Recent Suit

The firm was victor in a lengthy court battle here last month, when it won a decision from Superior Pudge James L. Allen denying the legality of the state agricultural act, and more recently it joined with five other independent shippers in injunction suits against the state to prevent regulation of citrus shipments.

Today's action was precipitated after inspection of the fruit at Placentia divulged it was below the legal sugar content rate. Before steps could be taken to halt the shipment, the fruit was moved to Wilmington, where it was tied up and returned to Placentia on order of a department of agriculture inspector.

Hearing May 29

According to the complaint the form was ordered to recondition the fruit, or to show cause why it should not be condemned and destroyed. Superior Judge G. K. Scovel issued the citation, and set the hearing for May 29.

State and county officials who requested the citation include Roy E. Black, deputy agricultural commissioner or Orange county; G. V. House, county agricultural inspector; C. A. Wirth, state inspector for the department of agriculture; and Paul K. Wilson, deputy agricultural commissioner of Los Angeles county.

Authorities today said that no contest was expected, as the legality of the clause under which the shipment is being enjoined has not been questioned.

URGE ETHIOPIA COLOR LINE

ROME, May 21. (AP)—The influential newspaper, Il Messagero, drew a clear color line today for Italy's new empire, declaring: "The Fascist empire cannot be an empire of mulattoes."

The emphatic editorial was one of the most outspoken of any internal matter that Italy has seen for a long time.

It deplored widespread, if somewhat humorous, propaganda depicting the charm of Ethiopian women.

The editorial suggested that many white women and families of colonists be sent to conquered Ethiopia and urged the formation of strictly white settlements, as well as native settlements under the supervision of a few whites.

FLOODS IN PUERTO RICO

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, May 21. (AP) — Twenty-five persons drowned and much damage was caused in floods today resulting from heavy rains after a record drought.

Lindy Runs Out of Gas on Ninth Anniversary of Hop

SEVEN OAKS, Kent., Eng., May 21. (AP)—On the ninth anniversary of his "Lone Eagle" flight across the Atlantic, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh ran out of gas today.

When his automobile motor "conked," however, the only resultant inconvenience was a 150-yard walk to the nearest gas station.

The colonel was driving his small American car on a morning spin through the countryside. He returned to his residence, Long Barn, to spend the rest of the day with Mrs. Lindbergh and their son, Jon.

Political Puzzle

Does One of These Pairs of Eyes Belong to Next G.O.P. Nominee for President?

If you can name the prominent Republicans whose eyes are shown above, you've solved half the puzzle; the easy half. If you can tell whether (and which) one of these will be the Republican nominee for President, you can consider yourself politically psychic. Turn to page 9 to see if you've solved the first part correctly. You'll have to wait till the Republican convention in Cleveland, June 9, to check your second answer.

Baldwin Sounds Italian Warning

LONDON, May 21. (AP)—Prime Minister Baldwin served a strong warning in the house of commons today that Great Britain would not tolerate foreign tampering with the affairs of Palestine and Egypt.

His statement was made in reply to a member's request that he make it clear that Great Britain would not permit Italian interference in those two countries.

INCREASE FOR INCOME TAX DEFEATED

Senate Finance Group Votes to Increase Corporation Levy

WASHINGTON, May 21. (AP)—Whipping all but one member into line, the senate banking committee today reached agreement on a compromise plan for increasing corporation taxes but scuttled a proposal, at the loss of considerable revenue, for boosting the normal income tax rate.

Moving along swiftly after days of delay, the committee thus reached accord on the vital part of the revenue blil.

Retain Profit

The compromise would call for a flat 18 per cent tax incorporation income, a flat 7 per cent on income withheld from distribution, exemption of $1000 from taxation for corporations making no more than $20,000 a year, and retention of the present capital stock and excess profits taxes.

Smiling broadly Chairman Pat Harrison said the committee had made "very good progress" and he expected it to be able to report out a bill early next week.

So greatly at odds was the committee during today's session that some members at one time threatened to leave the committee chamber.

One vote divided the members 11 to 8.

Raise 500 Millions

Harrison said the compromise corporation tax plan would raise "somewhere over $500,000,000" and said the treasury had been asked to submit examt estimates as to the yield.

The indication was it would fall considerably short of the $623,000,000 of permanent revenue sought by President Roosevelt to meet the cost of the new farm program and repayment of the bonus. Harrison had no definite reply when he was asked where the committee would get the remainder of the money.

C. Nichelson, Los Angeles; F. E. Snedecor, Corona; F. J. Raymond, San Francisco, and Louis A. Lopes, Watsonville, directors; L. M. Sawyer, Whittier, executive councilman.

Fractures Skull In Fall From Rig

Suffering from a basal fracture of the skull, James C. Hodnett, 28, Huntington Beach oil worker, is in Seaside Hospital, Long Beach, near death today. The accident resulting in Mr. Hodnett's injury occurred at 3 p. m. Tuesday when he fell to the ground from the top of an oil rig in Huntington Beach.

Yesterday a friend informed a Long Beach doctor that Hodnett was in a serious condition. Police took him to the hospital where an X-ray examination was made. Upon further investigation they learned he had fallen from the Huntington Beach oil rig, owned by Frank Berry.

You'll Get Bonds, Hines Tells Vets

WASHINGTON, May 21. (AP)—Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, reported to President Roosevelt today that applications for soldiers' bonus bonds would be acted upon as fast as they could be investigated and certified to the treasury.

"I am satisfied," he said, "that on the morning of June 15 postmasters will have bonds for every section of the country."

He added that the veterans' administration was working three shifts and said it was "up to date."

KILLER SLAYS CONVICT AT FOLSOM

Inmates Row Over Wild Ball Toss; Murderer Stabs Bank Robber

FOLSOM PRISON, May 21. (AP) John Beebe, third-timer, serving a life sentence for bank robbery, was stabbed to death today by Tom Kelly, convicted murderer, in a quarrel caused by a wild baseball toss that broke down plants in the garden tended by the latter, prison authorities said.

The fight occurred in the lower yard about 10:45 this morning just as the rock quarry workers were finishing their shift. Beebe, who was sent up March 25, 1921 for the robbery of a bank at Alvarado, near Oakland, was playing catch with another inmate, the warden's office said. The ball rolled into Kelly's garden and injured his plants. He threw it into a canal and Beebe criticized him for it.

The two convicts were fighting within a few minutes and before guards could intervene, Beebe had dropped to the ground with knife wounds in his chest and abdomen.

The guards were unable to find the knife.

District Attorney Babcock of Sacramento was notified and he said he would come to the prison to investigate. Beebe served two terms in San Quentin before his committment here. Kelly had served one term at San Quentin and a prior term here. He was about 59 years old and Beebe a few years younger.

QUADS' MOTHER SPEECHLESS

PASSAIC, N. J., May 21. (AP)—Mrs. Emil Kasper was left speechless today on first seeing her quadruplets.

Before she left St. Mary's hospital for her home in Little Ferry, she was taken to the children's special nursery just as Frank, second born of the four, was having his ration of milk.

Mrs. Kaspar put one hand to her forhead and stared, saying not a word until attendants led her away.

Then she turned to Dr. Frank F. Jank, who delivered the quadruplets 12 days ago, and said:

"Thank you ever so much, doctor. I'm sorry for all the trouble I caused you."

The quadruplets are all in good physical condition.

Ethiopia Conqueror Starts Homeward

ASMARA, Eritrea, May 21. (AP) Marshal Pietro Badoglio, leaving his responsibilities as viceroy of Ethiopia in the hands of Gen. Rodolfo Graziani, was on his way home today for a conquering hero's return to Italy.

General Graziani, commander of the southern campaign, arrived in Addis Ababa yesterday and assumed the power of government in the name of King-Emperor Victor Emmanuel just before Marshal Badoglio took his leave of the former Ethiopian capital.

Bullet Taken From Livermore Boy

NEW YORK, May 21. (AP)—The bullet which seriously wounded Jesse Livermore jr., 15, last November was removed today from under his right shoulder blade by Dr. John J. Moorehead, at postgraduate hospital.

The boy was shot by his mother, Mrs. Dorothea F. Wendt Livermore, at Santa Barbara, Calif. An official inquiry found the shooting was accidental.

Zioncheck's Landlady Weeps at Apartment Wreckage; Ousts Him

WASHINGTON, May 21. (AP)—Representative Zioncheck and his bride must go apartment hunting when they return from their Virgin Islands honeymoon trip.

Developments today indicated the young automobilist from Washington state will get no references from Mrs. Benjamin J. Young, his former landlady, when he begins to answer classified ads.

For yesterday Mrs. Young wept as she looked over the apartment she leased to Zioncheck last Christmas Eve. (That was just a week before he took over an apartment house switchboard, rang all the bells, and was arrested.

Mrs. Young, a magazine writer, has just returned from a trip to South America.

As she took an inventory of the kitchen, Mrs. Young sobbed, "My dishes have been thrown out of the window."

The bedroom was next. There had been a bedstead there at one time, said Mrs. Young, "but it seems to be gone."

A mattress rested on box springs. The bed spread, she said, "is in the dining room, under the table—it's being used as a rug."

On the sunporch Mrs. Young saw the congressman's colorful Indian head-dress.

"Mr. Zioncheck is not an Indian, is he?" she said in the tone of one looking for information.

"No, mam, he's a congressman," said a bellhop.

Mrs. Young packed up the Zioncheck wardrobe and sent it to his office. She explained that while the apartment had been leased until October, "I feel I have a right to move him out."

Baptists Say U. S. 'Most Militarized'

ST. LOUIS, May 21. (AP)—A report to the Northern Baptist convention today called the United States "the most militaristic nation in the world."

The convention committee on exemption from military training, which prepared the report, based its assertion upon the government's "expenditures for militarism."

"It is not surprising," the report said, "that the students in our colleges are not more unanimously opposed to compulsory military training at a time when the government is spending more than a billion dollars a year in military preparedness."

Social Security Office for S. F.

WASHINGTON, May 21. (AP)—The social security board announced today locations of its 12 regional offices and the appointment of directors for each region.

FRENCH DEFY ITALIANS

Refuse to Remove Army From Key City on Ethiopia Railroad

PARIS, May 21. (AP)—France refused today to withdraw her sturdy colonial troops from Diredawa, key point on the Italian-occupied Franco-Ethiopian railroad.

Official sources said the 150 colonials would continue to guard the Diredawa shops on the French-owned railroad, despite a request from Italy that they withdraw.

Such a withdrawal, these sources believed, would be tantamount to recognition of the Italian regime in Ethiopia.

In asking that the troops be moved, Italy insisted her army of occupation was capable of maintaining order throughout the conquered land.

Railroad officials also declined an Italian request that they permit the shipment of 840 tons of provisions from Djibouti, French somaliland, to the Fascist troops in Addis Ababa.

The request was turned down on ground that the road's war-time neutrality still is in force.

PROTEST OUSTING OF FRENCHMAN FROM ETHIOPIA

PARIS, May 21. (AP)—Joseph Paul-Boncour, acting foreign minister, declared tonight Italy's expulsion of a French priest from Ethiopia was 'inacceptable" and an authoritative source said France would protest vigorously.

Monsignor Andre Jarroseau, 78-year-old leader of Roman Catholic missions in Ethiopia, who had been in Ethiopia 50 years, was ordered out of the country by Italian authorities yesterday on charges of having made "hostile demonstrations against Italy."

Death Dealing Lepers Still Free

MANILA, P. I., May 21. (AP)—New tales of terror were awaited by authorities today as they gave up hope of immediately recapturing six lepers who killed seven Filipinos on their flight from the world's largest leper colony at Culion. Constabularymen said the sextet probably reached Borneo in a stolen fishing craft whose crew of four they murdered.

Mexico Federals Slay 9 Rebels

DENIAL MADE BY PENSION LEADER

'Townsendgram' Pleas Fraudulent, Says Probe Director

WASHINGTON, May 21. (AP)—Congressional investigation into the Townsend old age pension plan was thrown into an uproar late today when Dr. F. E. Townsend suddenly stalked out of the hearing room and refused to testify.

Appearing before the house investigators more than an hour after he was supposed to resume the stand, the elderly doctor asked permission to read a prepared statement. The request was denied.

"In view of the unfair and unfriendly attitude shown by this committee toward me and my organization," Dr. Townsend then said, "I refuse to testify further and will not appear here again unless under arrest."

He paused a moment, looked at the committee, snapped "goodbye," turned on his heels and walked from the room despite cries of committee members to "close the door" and "stop him."

The committee immediately had spectators excluded and closed the doors for an executive session.

WASHINGTON, May 21. (AP)—An assertion, immediately denied, that the Townsend old age pension organization used the mails to defraud was made today before a house investigating committee.

James R. Sullivan, committee counsel, declared that $11,490 was raised for a "congressional fund" by an appeal to Townsend clubs sent through the mails in the form of "Townsendgrams."

"Did you make any effort to stop these contributions?" Sullivan asked Dr. E. E. Townsend after reading a "Townsendgram" appeal for funds.

"No," Dr. Townsend replied. "We were after contributions."

"Did you do anything to stop this use of the mails to defraud" snapped Sullivan.

"I don't concede it was use of the mails to defraud," said Dr. Townsend.

Charges Frauds

Sullivan contended the "Townsendgrams" contained "fraudulent statements," as a basis for the plea for money.

Dr. Townsend, founder of the movement who was on the stand for the third day, denied knowledge of the appeal "until after it was out." He added he did not be-

'Come and Get Me,' Says Townsend Vice President

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 21. (AP)—Gomer Smith, national vice president of the Townsend pension organization, indicated today he would decline to go to Washington if subpoenaed to testify before the Townsend investigating committee.

Smith said "If the committee wants to see me it can come down and enjoy the climate of Oklahoma."

"If I have to go to jail to sustain the right of an American citizen against that inquisitorial body, they can have a cell ready right now."

Nightshirt Squabble Brews 'Duel'

OTTAWA, Ill., May 21. (AP)—A challenge to a duel with bean blowers at 50 yards was issued today to Tom B. Curtis of Atlanta, Ga., by L. M. (Doc) Davis, Ottawa editor, who declared he was the originator of all movements to organi : wearers of the old-fashioned nightshirt.

"The other day Curtis told what he called his plans to form the 'old-fashioned nightshirt union,'" the managing editor of the Daily Republican-Times said.

"It's pure plagiarism. Tom is my southern deputy and is taking advantage of the distance between us to claim authorship of the plan which I laid down as long as five years ago."

Davis dragged out dusty newspaper files to show his editorial-page columns of half a decade ago in which he heaped calumny upon "lame brained pyjama wearers" and recited the comfort of the "good old nightshirt with generous vents up the sides."

Davis' articles resulted in formation of local No. 1 of the Nightshirt club. It now boasts several hundred members in this community of 15,000 persons. He said Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward of Chicago, former resident of Ottawa, was one of the first to join and was followed into the club by Mayor H. J. Hilliard and other city officials.

The members' loyalty to the club's by-laws is tested, Davis said, by frequent late night visits to their homes to check on their sleeping attire.

Curtis, general agent of the Charleston and Western Carolina Railway company, was quoted as saying that suggestion for such a club was sent by him last week to Gov. Richard Leche, new governor of Louisiana, who said he never had worn anything but old-fashioned nightshirts.

"I commissioned Curtis to expand my club in the South," Davis declared, "and now he takes credit for the idea. My Missouri blood is boiling and I wanta fight."

When pressed on the latter point Davis meekly suggested the bean blowers.

EXPERT PREDICTS 45 MILLION STATE DEFICIT BY JULY 1, 1937

DEFEAT FOR SINGLE TAX IS URGED

California's budget deficit will reach approximately $45,000,000 by July 1, 1937, it was predicted last night by Dr. Von T. Ellsworth, tax expert for the state farm bureau, who addressed an audience at the Willard school auditorium.

Dr. Ellsworth's statement was made in a talk urging defeat of the proposed single tax, and retention of the sales and income taxes.

Foresees Huge Burden

The proposed single tax measure, said the speaker, would replace the gas tax, liquor and beverage taxes, gross premiums and corporation franchise tax. Within five years, he predicted, it would place approximately 91.3 per cent of the tax revenues of the state on land only.

Dr. Ellsworth said that in the final analysis land yould pay a tax of $12.04 per $100 of assessed valuation. He predicted this would result in much land being immediately lost for taxes and that owners of the remaining land would have to absorb the added tax burden.

Committee Organizes

With the state facing such a huge deficit, this is no time for tax experimenting, said the speaker.

Under chairmanship of J. A. Smiley, an Orange county committee representing a variety of organizations has been formed to fight the single tax and work for retention of the sales and income taxes.

Through co-operation of F. A. Henderson, school superintendent, entertainment was provided last night by the Willard school orchestra led by S. J. Mustol, and by members of the WPA women's choral sextet.

MORE ABOUT TOWNSEND

lieve the mails "were used to defraud."

Sullivan said that prior to the "Townsendgram" appeal, the organization raised $23,490 to defray expenses of seven men brought to Washington in January, 1935, to draft the McGroarty bill, embodying a form of the Townsend plan, and work for its passage.

Only Philosophical

Dr. Townsend disclaimed knowledge of Sullivan's assertion that only $1804 of the $23,490 was used before the "Townsendgram" appeal was made for additional funds.

The witness explained he had little or nothing to do with the raising of money and his province was the "philosophical and economic" aspect of the movement.

He said Robert E. Clements, former national secretary and co-founder, and others in the business office handled the financial end of the program.

The "Townsendgram" appeal for funds carried the name of Clements and Charles H. Randall of Los Angeles, chairman of the Townsend national strategy committee.

Sullivan introduced testimony taken by a sub-committee in California, in which Randall said he signed the original appeal for the "congressional fund" but denied he signed the "Townsendgram."

Claims Forgery

Randall, Sullivan said, testified he had "nothing whatsoever to do with the sending of the 'Townsendgram,'" adding that 'Randall claimed his name was forged to those Townsendgrams."

The "Townsendgrams," in addition to an appeal for money, reported "several notable victories" for the Townsend cause.

Asked about these victories, Dr. Townsend said he "supposed what is meant was that some congressmen had been approoached and were more cognizant of our plans."

The "Townsendgrams" were dated March 22, 1935.

Sullivan brought out that the appeal went to 5000 clubs and, with urgings to "hurry," suggested a "quota" of 15 cents a member.

He read a number of letters from various Townsend clubs acknowledging the request for funds and noting enclosure of contributions.

Had $21,000 Balance

Sullivan contended the "congressional fund" had a balance of about $21,000 when the "Townsendgram" appeal was made.

"How do you know that?" Dr. Townsend asked.

"We know it and have the records," Sullivan replied.

Dr. Townsend denied the appeal was discussed in the presence of M. Otto Moore, Denver, and other Townsend leaders and that Moore protested the appeal and said he would prosecute those who made it.

Sullivan read into the record testimony taken by a sub-committee in Los Angeles from Moore.

Moore testified he left the Townsend organization in April, 1935, after about six months' membership.

Representative Sam Collins (R., Calif.), a sub-committee member, objected to the reading of Moore's testimony on the ground it already was a part of the record. Chairman Bell (D., Mo.), over-ruled the objection and was sustained by the committee.

Moore's testimony generally was critical of the Townsend organization and its methods of operation.

Moore testified that of the original $23,490 raised for the congressional action committee of which he was a member, only $2404.96 was spent by the committee during four months in Washington.

He also told the committee, Sullivan recited, that "at least $10,000" was raised through the "Townsendgram" appeal in addition to the $23,490.

Denies 'Victories'

Moore also denied there were any "notable victories" as contended in the "Townsendgram" and added the lobby committee met "one disappointment after another." He estimated "between $2500 and $4000 was raised in Colorado before I could stop it."

The Coloradoan's testimony said he protested to Clements and Dr. Townsend against the appeal.

He quoted Clements as saying "We don't give a damn about the old people."

Moore testified that Mrs. W. W. Marshall of Colorado Springs, member of the committee, said "that is a terrible thing to say," and "cried on Dr. Townsend's shoulder."

"That is untrue and pure fabrication," Dr. Townsend said. "I am very positive the lady did not cry on my shoulder."

Makes Doctor Sleepy

Moore quoted Dr. Townsend as saying "Well boys, we are going out and raise a million and a half dollars," but the doctor disclaimed any recollection of having said it.

After listening to Sullivan's reading for 30 minutes or more, Dr. Townsend stood up.

"Gentlemen, this is all more or less soporific," he said.

Shortly thereafter Bell recessed the hearing for lunch.

Life Term Faces Holdup Slayer

LOS ANGELES, May 21. (AP)—Imprisonment from five years to life is the sentence to be imposed late today on 23-year-old James Fagan Culver, Kentucky itinerant, for the holdup slaying of Mrs. Ethel Whittaker, 44.

The thin, card-playing youth, who pleaded guilty to second degree murder, appeared less interested in his own fate than in the role of state's witness which he will take at the trial of his co-defendant, Samuel L. Whittaker, 60, husband of the slain woman.

KIWANIS HEARS TALK ON MWD

Col. S. H. Finley, secretary of the Metropolitan Water District, yesterday outlined the progress of the $220,000,000 aqueduct project which is destined to bring water to Santa Ana and 12 other cities in Orange and Los Angeles counties. Mr. Finley's address was delivered before members of the Santa Ana Kiwanis club at their noon meeting at James cafe.

The aqueduct is more than half finished, Colonel Finley told the club. Over 70 per cent of the 92 miles of tunnels have been completed with the exception of lining them. In all, there are only seven miles of tunnelling left to be done.

"As the result of unforseen difficulties encountered in tunnelling through the San Jacinto mountains, the project has been delayed approximately seven months," Colonel Finley said. "Water was encountered 800 feet below the surface of the mountain, and the original contractor for the project was unable to cope with the situation. Consequently, it was essential that he withdraw. At present the entire project is under the direct supervision of the M. W. D., and our own men are doing the work. At our present rate of progress, it is anticipated that water will be first delivered in the district over the canal in April, 1939. The actual work of construction will be completed several months before that date.

"The present setup is adequate to care for three times the number of cities provided for in the M. W. D. There is a movement under way at present whereby the entire area of Orange and Los Angeles counties will be included in the district. There also is a movement to include the city of San Diego in the district."

Colonel Finley was introduced by Program Chairman Harry Westover.

SEEK MORE OIL PROBE FUNDS

Senator Culbert Olson, Epic leader of a state senate committee charged with investigating gas and oil drainage from state lands, wants more money with which to conduct the probe. He told the Associated Press at Los Angeles yesterday that lack of funds had frustrated the investigation, and asked Governor Merriam to place the matter before the special session of the legislature, scheduled for next week.

Senator Olson's committee held one meeting at Huntington Beach, one at Sacramento and one at Los Angeles. It once hired Alexander Anderson, Fullerton oil well surveyor, to secure data on slant wells at Huntington Beach. Then the Standard Oil Company became interested and it was reported that Mr. Anderson had gone to work for that concern.

Senator N. T. Edwards of Orange, member of the committee, said he believed the committee had been given a $2500 appropriation for its work. At the time it started activity Senator Olson said Governor Merriam had promised a $20,000 appropriation. This sum never has been forthcoming, and the committee has not been meeting for some time.

Researchers Sprinkle Work With Unconscious Humor

PALO ALTO, May 21. (AP)—Humor, doubtless of the unconscious variety, marks reports from field workers of the rural research survey in various parts of the state. The survey today submitted the following examples:

The children need thorough cooking.

The man was hit by an automobile and speaks broken English.

Today even the food supplied by ERA, who has given four bags of coal.

Called on a tall woman with very simple interior.

The woman is troubled with obsessed ears.

The man is a very high white collar type.

The man has had two operations and is now rid of his money entirely.

Although applicant's wife looked worried and despondent, her canary was singing cheerfully.

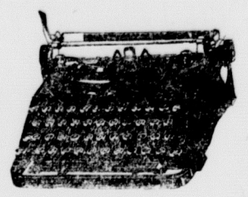

Woman still owes $25 for funeral she had recently.

Applicant supports one minor and two majors.

Mother is very intellectual, speaks three languages and has even written a poem that nobody will buy.

WARNING!

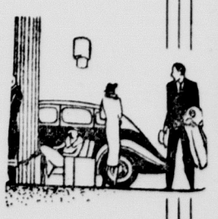

A "CARAVAN" CAR IS A USED CAR!

A "CARAVAN" CAR, in the generally accepted term, is one which, starting from its manufacturer's plant new, has either been towed or driven on its own power to a point distant from that factory, where it is then offered for sale. It might be subjected, during the trip, to various hazards which would greatly impair its actual value before it reaches the hands of the purchaser. IT MIGHT EVEN BE SUBJECTED TO GREATER WEAR AND TEAR THAN A CAR WHICH HAS TRAVELED CONSIDERABLY MORE MILEAGE UNDER ORDINARY PRIVATE USE.

These facts are placed before the public by the Motor Car Dealers' Association of Santa Ana because in addition to feeling that you are entitled to the true facts, the members of this Association also wish to announce that they are opposed to the Caravan practice, feeling, as they do, that in order to convey cars here under careful guidance and control, changing oil regularly, and limiting speed to that normally consistent with a brand new car, the cost of so doing would more than overcome any saving in freight which could be effected; and for that reason the members of this Association secure their cars from the respective factories by freight and, THEREFORE, THE CARS ARE PLACED IN THE PURCHASERS' HANDS WITHOUT MILEAGE OR USAGE OF ANY KIND EXCEPT THE FACTORY DRIVING TEST.

PROBE ATTACK ON WOMAN

Orange county deputy sheriffs were called early today to investigate an asserted criminal attack in which Bonnie Reichman, 28, Long Beach, suffered head injuries, a broken finger and numerous bruises while resisting her attacker. Mrs. Reichman is in Community hospital, Long Beach, receiving treatment for her injuries.

According to a report filed by Deputy Sheriff G. F. McKelvey today, Mrs. Reichman left her place of employment, the Patio cafe, near Seal Beach at 2 a. m., and went with friends to a party i Seal Beach, she told officers. At 4 a. m. she concluded it was time to go home and started walking along the Coast Highway toward Long Beach.

A car traveling at a high rate of speed toward Long Beach stopped ahead of her and turned around, and a man approached and stopped her, asking if she had seen two women walking toward Long Beach. She replied in the negative, and for some unexplained reason, she said the man struck her on the back of the head.

Mrs. Reichman told officers she struggled with her unknown assailant who threw her to the ground and criminally attacked her.

When he disappeared in the dark, Mrs. Reichman proceeded along the highway to the Los Angeles Gas and Electric company plant near Seal Beach where she told the night superintendent, Harry Treutham, what had happened. Long Beach police were called and they notified the sheriff's office.

The Sidewalk Spectator:

To The Journal: Dr. Townsend seems to be holding his own. A few days ago he said we ought to elect a minister as president. Well, we've tried about everything else: professors, engineers, brain-trusters, politicians, etc.

Dr. J. B. Chapman claims that "the preachers are better financiers than the bankers. And my proof is that during the depression only one church out of every 200 had to close its doors on account of money matters, while one bank out of six went to the wall."

Now a minister might be all right but who does Dr. Townsend have in mind? If Billy Sunday were here he might do—in fact we can almost hear him campaigning with typical Billy Sunday english and we'll bet if he got a chance and took a mind to, he'd drive some of the money-changers out of the "temples"—and how!

But there ain't no more Billy Sundays.

Yours "in memorium,"
GLENN L. THORNE,
The Sidewalk Spectator.

Here and There With The Journal's Rambling County Editor

By T. N. (BRICK) GAINES

MET a horse yesterday. Socially. Went to a party at his house and enjoyed every minute of it.

His name was Serrano and he's going to have a birthday pretty soon—he'll be two years old. I'm hoping he'll have a birthday party and that I'll be invited again. Because it's fun.

Serrano belongs to Clint Brush, who lives on Huntington Beach boulevard, down by Oceanview. Clint trains horses and hinted that perhaps I'd see something if I dropped out. So I dropped.

It was worth a dozen trips to see that horse perform. Someone, I've forgotten who it was, said that he's the best trained horse in the country, and I'm perfectly willing to believe it.

His most amazing trick is spelling. His master places block letters, 13 of 'em, in a circle. First he tells spectators to ask for any letter. The horse immediately gets the proper one, without any mistakes. Then a three-letter word was suggested. Like "cat," perhaps. Immediately Serrano starts spelling the word. He goes and gets the "C" and returns it to his master, who puts the letter back in place, to make the problem harder. The other two letters are returned in the same way. It's hard to believe, but he really does it!

The only connection Clint has with the horse is a light line, attached to the bit. I watched that line for a signal of some sort, like a jerk, but there wasn't any. A good length of it laid in the dust all the time.

Finally I asked Clint the reason for the rope and he explained that if a young horse like Serrano ever runs away, he never forgets it. "Might as well start training another one," he added. "He'll never be worth anything as a trained horse again."

But, to get along with Serrano's tricks, when he'd finished his spelling bee, Clint turned his back to a pasteboard box lying some distance away and said, "Go get the box." Immediately the horse went over, picked up the box, gave it a few playful shakes, and started picking up the letters from the ground and putting 'em away in the box. Very cute, what?

After that, he was sent off by himself for a distance of about 50 feet. Then the master told him to stop. He stopped. "Turn around," he commanded. Yeah, you're right. He turned around. Then, at a command, he came back.

Then he mounted a teeter-totter, both facing ahead and backwards. This trick, the owner explained, was more difficult to the expert eye because it was done without a switch or anything else to guide the animal when he "teetered."

All in all, Serrano was quite some animal. When he finished his tricks, Clint brought out six-year-old Silver, another trained horse. Silver did lots of tricks, too, and it was fun.

* * *

After the show was over, the owner explained a few things about training horses. When one picks a youngster to train as a musician, he said, one who shows some aptitude along that line is the best. Same way with horses, he added. Out of perhaps 500 of the animals, one may be found worthy of training.

Next Tuesday youngsters are going to get a treat at the Jefferson school in Santa Ana. Clint is going to take his two horses and put on a show for 'em. As a little advice for any oldsters interested in such things, it's to be at 11 a. m.

Those kids are in for a treat, and perhaps a few unkind words from their teachers when Serrano adds and multiplies. He does it very well, and doesn't make any mistakes! Hope everyone's arithmetic lesson's perfect the next day—I know what the teachers'll say if it isn't!

George Kellogg and the rest of the Imperial highway group will meet in Corona tomorrow evening. A week early, so as not to get tangled up with Memorial day.

They're still gasping and gurgling over a meeting held there two years ago, when the historical society of the Woman's club almost had 'em hysterical. They introduced Prof. Owen Coy from U. S. C., who told all sorts of things about past history of the country thereabouts. It was fine, from what we hear.

Friday evening's sure to be a fine meeting, and everyone who possibly can attend should go.

And here's another looney recipe:

This'n is especially useful right now, since eggs are cheap.

The name is unpronouncable and so unspellable, but here's the way she goes. Take two large, fresh eggs. Preferably Rhode Island eggs. Place them on the sinkboard. Then toast several slices of buttered bread in the oven. Nice and crisp. Crush a bowl of strawberries, and when ready, cube the hot toast, put it on plates and pour the strawberry go over the toast.

Then put the eggs back where you got 'em.

Great saving in eggs, what?

ROOSEVELT TO OPEN WATER PAGEANT

Saturday Morning Parade First on Program; Crowds Arrive

NEWPORT - BALBOA. — This harbor area is taking on a gala appearance as final touches are being made on decorations in readiness for the gigantic marine parade and celebration that will mark the opening of Newport Harbor Saturday and Sunday.

The two-block area of parking space in Newport will soon be transformed into a carnival center, and banners and flags will soon be waving from all boats and houses as welcomes are extended to the people of the Southland to attend the event.

A gold plaque will be awarded the yacht club having the largest representation at the opening ceremonies on Saturday, it was announced yesterday by Secretary Harry Welch.

Committee Told

The official committee consisting of Com. John Stick, California Yacht club; Com. L. A. Slater, the Los Angeles Yacht club; Com. Paul Lamport, Long Beach Yacht club, and J. M. Webster, representing the Newport Harbor Yacht club, will make awards based on the number of boats, number of members and distance traveled.

At 11:45 boat owners will assemble their craft outside the entrance where boats coming from other ports will join them. The parade will be formed in two divisions, the first division to consist of boats drawing less than 12 feet of water, and the second those drawing more than 12 feet of water, and the six-meter sloops.

Flagship to Lead

The fleet flagship, Memory, will lead the parade into the bay and will travel as follows: West along south side of Balboa Island to Harbor Island, across to east end of Lido Isle, along south side of Lido Isle to opposite city camp grounds, thence east to end of Balboa Peninsula, then west along main channel to anchorage.

Ramona, the handsome 110-foot schooner of Com. H. W. Rohl, of the Newport Harbor Yacht club, will lead division 2, following the main channel to Bay Island, thence around Bay Island to the anchorage.

The third division will be made up of yachts entered in the cruiser class race from San Pedro. This division will have a parade all of its own because the 50 craft will not arrive at this port until about 4 p. m.

F. D. R. to Take Part

A radio signal sent by President Roosevelt from Washington, D. C., at 1 p. m., Western time, will announce the beginning of the parade. The signal will also start a squadron of pursuit airplanes across the line. The army aviators will fly in formation and circle the bay four times, and then at an elevation of 10,000 feet will put the army's fastest planes through a series of stunt performances.

At 12:30 p. m., Father Neptune, with his royal court, Cabrillo and Nunez, mermaids and choruses, will give a radio program from the ship San Salvadore near the Balboa pavilion. The ship will then fall in line and parade with the other boats. At 3 p. m. Governor Merriam will be given the governor's salute of 21 guns when he starts out to inspect the harbor.

Between 8 and 10 p. m. the bay will be illuminated by searchlights from the U. S. army searchlights from Fort MacArthur. At 9 p. m. fireworks will be displayed from Harbor Island. Dancing for the public will follow at the Rendezvous ballroom.

BROADEN BEACH PLAY SCOPE

LAGUNA BEACH. — Definite action toward providing the city with adequate recreation facilities was taken last night when the city council adopted a resolution establishing a recreation commission. The action of the council was on recommendations of a citizen group of 21, sponsored by the chamber of commerce and the high school Parent-Teachers association. It will be made up of nine members, four holding membership ex-officio. The official personnel is to be made up of a member of the city council, a member of the board of education, a member of the planning commission, and the superintendent of schools.

Action on a resignation submitted by Peter J. Bushman as fire chief, to take effect June 15, was deferred until the next regular meeting on a motion of Fire Commissioner Charles H. Jester.

Included among communications read was a vigorous protest filed by the Laguna Beach Realty board against the provisions of an ordinance requiring real estate salesmen, employed by licensed brokers, to take out a separate and individual business license. The complaint was referred to the city attorney.

Reporting on a complaint by citizens that some liquor establishments may have sold liquor to persons under age, Police Commissioner Charles H. Jester stated that he had made a thorough investigation and had found no violation of the law. Councilman Randolph Bainbridge said there had been some criticism by people living here and outside of Laguna over the liquor situation, and urged a close surveillance of all liquor places.

Echoes of a recent court decision, declaring a former ordinance establishing different license rates for building contractors and plumbing concerns, the difference being based on residence status, were heard last night in the first and second reading of an amended ordinance, equalizing license rates, eliminating any reference to residence status of the contractor.

The case against the son was dismissed, and the father entered a plea of guilty to a charge of chief contributor to the boy's misdemeanors by having taken him to the school grounds for a picnic. The boy broke light globes and windows with an air rifle, and marked up walls of the school building, it was reported.

Kineau was placed on two years' probation, provided that he pay for the damage done at not less than $6 per month until the $102 is paid back, and also provided that he does not set foot on the Irvine school grounds at any time during the probationary period.

Battle of Petitions Raging Over Beach Parking Lots

NEWPORT-BALBOA. — Two battles are raging in this city over free parking lots—one proposed for Balboa and the other at Newport. A group is circulating petitions as it backs the city council in its attempt to construct a Balboa free parking lot and street.

While one faction is backing injunction proceedings against the council over the Balboa parking lot, merchants at Newport are threatening to start injunction proceedings against the council for allowing a carnival to fill up the Newport parking lot. Injunction papers will be filed today, according to statements made last night.

Merchants at Newport are worked up to a high pitch over the invasion of the carnival. The parking lot accommodates about 700 automobiles, and fishermen and other visitors park their cars here and then patronize the live bait boats, barge, the bait and tackle stores, grocery stores, soda fountains and other places of business, they claim. The merchants claim the carnival will drive away their business.

Proponents of the free parking lot at Balboa say that the location of a beach street and beach parking lot would improve their business, relieve traffic jams and provide necessary parking space for the throngs of visitors.

Opponents to the Balboa parking lot and street contend that the beach will be spoiled for a playground, that it is too expensive a project for the city to provide free parking to the public, and that the city council pushed the deal without the knowledge of the planning commission or of the citizens.

JAMES GILMORE H. S. LEADER

HUNTINGTON BEACH. — James Gilmore was elected president of the student body at the high school yesterday. Other officers who will serve with him for the ensuing year are Kime Talbert, vice president; Marion Reeves, secretary, and Gale Bergey, treasurer.

The new officers will take office next Monday to replace Ernest Siracusa, president; Curtis Hunt, vice president; Lois Eader, secretary, and Tom Nagamatsu, treasurer.

PARK LEADER APPOINTED

ORANGE.—Mrs. Berta La Fernay was appointed by the Orange playground commission to act as playground supervisor at the city park, it was announced Wednesday by George Sherwood, chairman of the committee. The new director began her work Wednesday.

Mrs. La Fernay has been connected with the federal recreation project locally, and has received six weeks instruction in playground work, given by Mrs. Marion Clark, who has been holding classes in the Y. M. C. A. Mrs. La Fernay will be on duty from 3:30 to 5 p. m. daily until school closes, when the hours will be changed.

NEWPORT CLUB MEETS AT SEA

NEWPORT - BALBOA. — When the live bait boat, Dina Lee, docked at the Balboa pavilion last evening there were 89 yellowtail, 75 barracuda, 21 sea bass and a few large halibut aboard, representing a catch of about 2000 pounds of fish.

About 12 members of the Newport Harbor Service club fished and conducted their regular meeting aboard the craft on their annual outing.

J. D. Watkins and Fire Chief Frank Crocker, chairman of the day, each displayed several large yellowtail. Gus Tamlis, had five; C. H. Reed, two; R. S. Downing, eight; M. Van Drimlen, Santa Ana, six; C. W. Wright, Taft, 12; H. H. Fogwell, Los Angeles, five.

On a sister boat out for the day Mrs. Alice Hunerberg caught three yellowtail and six bass. Joseph Mezaros, Los Angeles, nine yellowtail and two bass. On the boat Crowley IV, there were six passengers and 41 yelltowtail, 21 barracuda, 22 bass and seven halibut. The Valencia, Owl, Sunshine and other boats came in loaded with fish and docked at the Newport pier and at the Nineteenth street landing.

"Floating Peril"

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

First the mystery girl and then Mermillon, high French statesman, try desperately to buy Haymer Wildburn's small yacht, the Bird of Paradise. Wildburn refuses both pressing offers, but is puzzled by the intense desire of the would-be purchasers. What do they want of his small boat? What makes it so valuable? Haymer ponders these questions, but does not realize that his two latest visitors—the Baron and Mermillon—have plotted against him.

The plot thickens decidedly when Mermillon and Princess de Fantany—the mysterious midnight visitor of the first chapter—meet at a royalty dinner and talk in mysterious terms.

General Perissol, another powerful French cabinet minister, comes to the resort and hints that Perissol is under grave suspicion. We left Louise and Perissol at dinner after he had told Louise he, too, "had an interest" in Wildburn's yacht and had ordered a government boat to the harbor to protect it. Now go on with the story:

CHAPTER 12

"To some small extent," Perissol admitted. "We had the opportunity of examining her as she lay in Toulon harbor. We made use of the naval secrets bill and examined her all over. There was nothing. She was ownerless then, or her owner was away, I forget which, so we were able to go about our task without interruption. When I return to Paris I can, if it interests you, send you the papers."

The Cabinet Minister shook his head.

I have enough business of my own to attend to," he observed, a little ruefully, "without interfering in your department. She belongs to an Englishman now, they tell me."

"Englishman or American," Perissol replied, "I forget which."

"A very pig-headed fellow," Mermillon declared. "Apart from those faint rumours which your investigations seem to have squashed I would have bought the boat for my lad. I offered the owner quite a decent price but he would have nothing to say to me. The personal characteristics of these Anglo-Saxons are exactly on a par with their national tendencies. They have always made life very difficult for politicians who take a broader outlook."

"I feel that I can never be sufficiently thankful," Perissol reflected, for the fact that I understand nothing about international politics. I think that if I were able to look out upon the world today with the inner knowledge that a trained politician such as yourself must have, I should go crazy. It is certain that I should never be able to continue my work."

"I appreciate your point of view," Mermillon meditated, "but there must be times, General, when you are forced to come into touch, and very close touch, too, with internal politics."

Perissol shook his head. He had accepted a cigarette after his coffee and was leaning back in his chair smoking with an air of calm enjoyment.

"It is my business," he said, "to keep down crime. That is sufficient."

"When I first entered the Chamber," Mermillon confided, "a young man full of ambition and with a very single purpose, I might have agreed with you. Today—well, there is still the shadow of that ghastly case which no patriotic Frenchman mentions but which we all remember. That and the man's sudden death afterwards. There was crime there, and there has been an aftermath of crime, but alas, we all know that there was also politics."

"That case was not typical," Perissol pointed out. "There has never been another like it. All France is hoping that there never will be again."

"And with good reason," Mermillon declared fervently. "Believe me, General, you are well off to be at the head of a great service which is not directly concerned with politics. There are men whom we meet day by day in Paris, men who are loved and men who are hated, who at the back of our minds we know have to bear the burden of almost intolerable secrets. They have to bear that burden for the sake of La Patrie. Believe me, the embers of that flaming bonfire of filth are still alight."

"This sounds like drama," Perissol muttered, "out of place amongst such serenity as this—this strengthening sunshine and this whispering wind."

"It is drama," Mermillon insisted, "drama walking in a guise it has never assumed before, but very terrible drama. I think that there is no one else in the world to whom I would say this, Perissol, but even today a blunderer, by a single ill-advised action, if chance gave him the opportunity might bring the ruin of the country we both love so much."

"You go beyond me," Perissol confessed.

"I will give you an analogy," Mermillon suggested, gazing across the bay and watching a figure upon the "Bird of Paradise." "There are many explorers and philosophers who will tell you that the class of people who have done more harm in the world than any other have done it through being zealous to do good. I mean missionaries. So, in the case today of our beloved mother country, she is in danger only when people, whilst working with the honest belief that their end and aim is for her good, might bring about a great catastrophe. Such people are cursed with narrow vision. A missionary in a foreign country seeking to proselytize is in the same position."

"Except," General Perissol acknowledged, "that I believe I understand something of the dynamics of crime, a great deal concerning its distribution, and have theories of my own as to dealing with it, I am an ignorant man. When you talk about any catastrophe to be brought about by plotters which might threaten the security of Franke you talk in a language which I do not understand. If you spoke of war I might follow you. I gather, however, that it is not war you mean."

"Cast your thoughts back to that forbidden period," Mermillon enjoined sadly. "Think of some of those whose names you have heard whispered in connection with it. It is the corruption of humanity, of educated humanity, the corruption which has found its way into the best and most secret places which I have in my mind. Compared with that, the menace of Germany or any foreign Power is nothing. The philandering of England, the commercial outcry against us from America, the perpetually waved sword of Italy will never harm us. If France perishes the deed is her own."

"But surely our present position ——" Perissol began.

"Let us have done with the subject," Mermillon interrupted. "Discursive talk is useless and it will never come within your province, dear General, to strike either the blow that would free France or the blow that would cripple her for ever. You must not take me too seriously. You know the critics of my career do sometimes say this against me, that I have done good work, that I am a proud satesman and that I have shown myself a real patriot, but that I am also something of a dreamer. Let us have it at that. I may have that faculty of seeing into a visionary kingdom. Sometimes too too strong a vasion breeds horrible fancies . . . We are to have a strange neighbor, it seems.

He inclined his head seaward toward the opening of the bay. There was a line of dark smoke curling upward from a long gray vessal moving at a considerable speed. Mermillon examined it through his glasses in interested fashion.

"What on earth can this be?" he exclaimed.

"Probably an old-fashioned tanker on its way to Antibes harbor," Perissol observed, as he rose to his feet. "I see them sometimes from my windows."

Mermillon, his glasses still in hand, moved to the side of the yacht.

"But this in unbelievable," he pointed out. "It is a small gunboat—one of our own, I imagine, to judge by the flag. What on earth can she be doing coming in here?"

She was traveling now at half speed—a shallow grey warship of somewhat antiquated type but still formidable with her sharp bow and the morning sun flashing upon fer forward guns. Perissol looked at her steadily.

He realized, that with the appearance of the gunboat, he was now placed in a vitality delicate position. From this moment on—at least while he remained in the presence of Mermillon—his every move, his every word, would run the merciless gamut of the Minister's suspicious inferences. Let Mermillon suspect—that did not matter. But to offer the merest, even flimsiest pretext for him to confirm these suspicions that he must guard against, with all the strength and resourcefulness of his being. It was not his own destiny that was at stake. It was the destiny of La Uatrie!

"I do not understand navel movement," he remarked, "but is it not strange that she should be traveling alone?"

"I should have thought so," Mermillon agreed, lowering his glasses. "Certainly she has no business here."

The two men watched her with interest as she made slow progress toward them. An officer upon the bridge held a chart in one hand. The marines were taking soundings. The anchor went down finally in the middle of the bay about a hundred yards away from the "Bird of Paradise."

"Incredible," Mermillon murmured.

That exclamation, constituting an involuntary admission of bewilderment, and coming from the imperturable French Foreign Minister would, had it been overheard within Government circles, resulted in much lifting of eyebrows. For Mermillon was not one to be easily surprised. A long, intensive and brilliant political career had, inevitably, invested this master statesman with a philosophical suavity and unlimited self-assurance which were not readily disturbed.

For a few moments folliw

For a few moments following his brief utterance, Mermillon kept his eyes rivited upon the intruding gunboat with an almost hypnotic rigidity.

With imperceptible alertness, General Perissol observed the Foreign Minister's face, which by now had again resumed its detached, inscrutable expression.

"Incredible, but it has happened," Perissol observed. "After all, it is not the first time."

"It is one of those apparently simple affairs which intrigue one," the other reflected. "I shall forget for the moment that I am spending my brief vacation incognito. I shall send across a note to the Commander and ask for an explanation of his visit."

"Why not wait and see if he has not brought some sort of a message for you?" Perissol suggested.

Mermillon shook his head.

Another Fish Tale

Short Stuff

Let's get out of our own back yard for once—have a look at what the sports figures are doing in other cities of this swell Orange county.

Over at Fullerton Junior college the talk of the school is still how the four Swarm boys copped the jaysee mile relay at Fresno Saturday night and how they figure to do it all over again at the Compton relays Friday evening.

But Coach Harold Lang may change things. He may rob the Fullertonites of some nice between - classes yammering on Monday.

Lang appears not too certain that he wants his star, Erwin Miller, to go to the tape. "I don't want him to run if he has more than five yards to make up. Winning isn't everything!" he is quoted as having said recently.

In Fresno Miller took the stick five yards behind, turned in a 48 seconds and handed F. J. C. a record. All this after fine work by Tom Berkley, Ralph Colvin and Paul Moore.

"We'll win our event at Compton Friday night," Lang predicts, "if we don't have too many heats to run."

Fishing tales by the dozen drift inland from Newport - Balboa. Here's one that cops all the recent spinnings by a mile:

He was a shy boy, rather quiet. He looked out of place among the old time anglers who crowded the pier. But he flung his line into the waters—and fish came and came unto him. A few hours later Chester Umberham, Orange boy who studies at Fullerton Junior college, staggered off the pier with—look—23 halibut! The largest weighed 15 pounds and the smallest two.

* * *

Here's something we've gotta investigate and the boss really should give us a couple of days off to probe around. Another story we hear is that the big barge California, which has just been anchored off Newport, has a history that reads like a story by Rudyard Kipling.

'Tis claimed the vessel was once an old lumber schooner. Legendists claim it was seized and counter seized in liquor traffic several times. During its stormy career, they say, it flew under Canadian, Mexican and American flags. (All the ghosts of its fierce past have been chased out, however, and the boat is now equipped for night fishing and sleeping—bunks and all.—Adv.)

Short stuff . . . Coach Shorty Smith is back on the job again at Brea . . . Elmory Jordon, who lived on the same Fullerton block with Arky Vaughan for 16 years, has missed out with the Los Angeles Angels Ponca City punks but has been greeted with cheers and a radio interview in Wichita . . . Dan Mulherron, San Clemente's new mayor, is making a bid for female (and male) golfers at the coast city's golf course . . . He offers to let the women play free, thinks they will be bait enough to bring the men swingers there . . . and he's probably right.

Reporting on Lupe Cordoza, as promised. . . Lupe does not get that trip to Berlin as a member of the Yankee boxing team. . . . Not even as an alternate. . . . Manager Hitt of the First Nationals will serve as a relief chucker for Roy Stout, the Garden Grove red-head who was recently acquired from the rival Commercial Nationals. Lewis Collins will catch. Crippled Giants Hobble Into First Place

NEW YORKERS GANG UP ON CARDINALS

Ailing Terrymen Score Seventh Consecutive Game on Home Lot

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

The New York Giants, a team which has seen its starting pitchers finish only nine games out of 29; whose manager and leading hitter, Bill Terry, is on the bench because of injuries; which has had nearly all its key men hurt at one time or another and which was down to one able catcher for a time, is in first place in the National league.

It speaks volumes for the ability and spirit of the Giants that they have even remained in the race in the face of all those handicaps. To make it even more surprising, eight of those nine complete games have been hurled by two men, Carl Hubbell and Hal Schumacher, and Schumacher has finished only three times in eight efforts.

Gashousers Ganged

Coming back after a disastrous western tour, during which they lost six out of eight games, the Giants have rallied to win seven in a row on their home lot from those same western rivals and climb from fourth place to the top.

They took the lead by a direct frontal attack on the St. Louis Gashouse Gang, yesterday, trimming the Cardinals 10 to 7 and routing their old teammate, Roy Parmelee.

The Brooklyn Dodgers also staged an advance in the standing perhaps just to show off some of the material they may trade to the wobbly Cubs. With Van Mungo on the hill pitching six-hit ball, the Flatbush boys belted the Cubs 11 to 2 and moved out of the cellar. The Phillies replaced them after absorbing a 9 to 3 beating from Pittsburgh's Pirates as Floyd (Pep) Young smacked a pair of home runs.

Leaders Lose

New York, Boston and Cleveland, runnning 1-2-3 in the American league, all came out on the short end of yesterday's encounters. The World Champion Detroit Tigers, whose pitching has taken a decided turn for the better, outlasted the Yankees to win a 10-inning mound duel between Schoolboy Rowe and Red Ruffing, 4 to 3.

The St. Louis Browns pummeled the Red Sox 12 to 8 despite Jimmie Foxx's ninth homer of the season and Washington edged out the Indians, 7 to 6, leaving Cleveland only a half game ahead of Detroit.

Merritt (Sugar) Cain, who seems to have taken on new life since the Browns traded him to the White Sox, pitched Chicago to its first shutout victory of the season when he blanked the Athletics with seven hits to win 4-0. In the day's other game the Cincinnati Reds trounced the Boston Bees 10 to 8.

Wild Pitch Licks Ducks for Seals

By the Associated Press

Brook Holder's remarkable physical attraction for pitched balls won a game for the San Francisco Seals and figured prominently in the changed positions of four Pacific Coast league clubs today.

When Holder was hit for the third time yesterday by a pitched ball it forced in the deciding run of the Seals 12-11 affair with Portland.

That game, with Oakland's 3-1 win over the Missions and Seattle's 4-0 victory over Los Angeles, moved Seattle back into second place, tied the Missions and the Seals for third and dropped Portland into fifth position.

Seattle's win was the work of beautiful three-hit pitching by Lou Koupal, who is as good as hurlers come on the coast, and a brace of home runs by Heinie Muller.

Maxie Ends Court Row; Comeback?

SAN FRANCISCO, May 21. (AP) Max Baer's drawn-out court fight with his first manager, J. Hamilton Lorimer, was officially ended today, and the former heavyweight boxing champion immediately started talking about "a comeback."

Under the terms of the agreement, Lorimer quit all claims against Baer for $55,000.

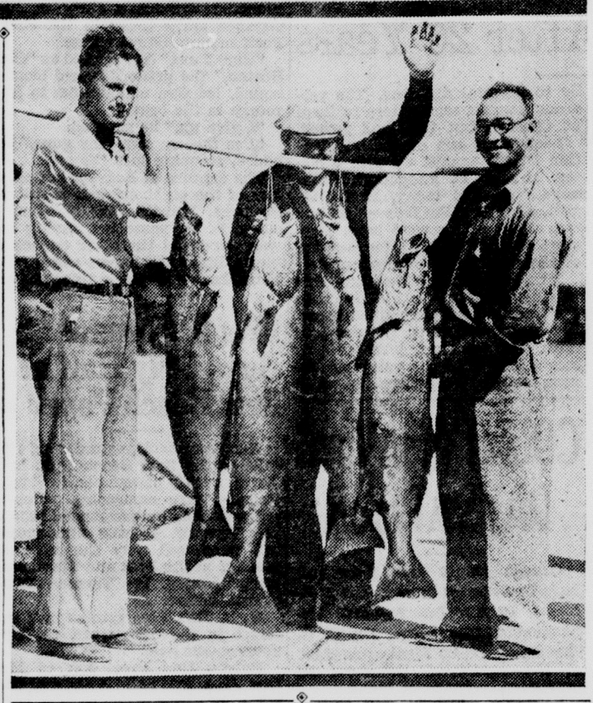

Ancil Hoffman, who will be manager exclusively now, said the big Californian will go into the mountains after the end of this month for a preliminary training session.

"If Max shows me he means business and can get into shape, he'll start a comeback," Hoffman said.

CUMMINGS TO SLOW DOWN THIS YEAR

INDIANAPOLIS, May 21. (AP)—"Wild Bill" Cummings, auto speedster whose pressure on the accelerator in the past brought him the nickname, declared today he was not going to be so "leadfooted" in the speedway classic here May 30.

"Wild Bill" is a wily race chauffeur. In 1934 he won the speedway grind and captured the National driving championship. His opinions, therefore, carry weight along Gasoline Alley.

In a prophetic mood today, he said the winning average speed this year probably would not exceed the all-time record of 106.240 miles per hour set last year by Kelly Petillo. He also expressed belief a steady pace of "about 110 miles per hour" will win this year's race. Stops at the pits, however, for oil and tire changes and other matters will cut down the total average.

"The track is much faster and safer than before," Cummings said, "but I believe the 37.5 gallon gasoline limit for the 500 miles and the new asphalt on the turns will hold down high speed."

Cummings said: "The boys who go much faster than 110 miles per hour during the race probably will run out of gasoline—that is, all of them except Wilbur Shaw."

Shaw whipped his 4-cylinder streamlined creation around the 25-mile qualification drive on less than two gallons of gasoline. The other drivers barely stayed within the 2.5-gallon qualification limit.

"Wild Bill" emphasized that "I am not going to challenge Shaw for high speed records, but I'll be there at the finish."

Tiernan and Phone Company Softball Girls Win Openers

Indications of well-balanced competition for its first season emerged from first-round games in the Santa Ana Girls' Softball league at the Municipal bowl last night.

Fred (Andy) Anderson's "Thank You" Girls of the Southern California Telephone company, paced by a home run and effective pitching by Mrs. "Babe Ruth-Dizzy Dean" Hill of Anaheim, defeated Coach Gordon Mallett's Smith and Corona Typewriter girls, 9 to 6. MISS JACOBS IS READY TO PLAY NOW

LONDON, May 21. (AP)—Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, Calif., four times winner of the American tennis championship, arrived from Vienna today and quickly set at rest any fears that she might not be able to play for the United States in the Wightman cup matches next month against Great Britain.

"I was surprised to hear reports that I was supposed to have been operated on at Vienna," said Miss Jacobs, who was stricken ill with an internal complaint two weeks ago in the Austrian capital.

"I'm perfectly all right now," she asserted. "In fact I'm going to play at Wimbledon this afternoon."

Lopez Wants Own Referee for Title Bout Here Monday

Champion Vincent Lopez, who risks his world title as recognized by the California State Athletic commission, here Monday night when he meets Vic Christy in a three-fall, one hour time limit mat battle at the Orange County Athletic club, today demanded that Don McDonald, famed Long Beach wrestling official, referee the match.

Lopez, it is charged, fears that he will be "double-crossed" out of his title, and wants to make certain that a competent arbiter handles the championship affair.

But Promoter Sam Sampson told Lopez that the match would be handled by the referee named by the state athletic commission.

TRACK COACH WILL HONOR 40 SAINTS

Eight Class B Athletes Receive Recognition On Green Varsity

Forty Class A, B and C trackmen will be honored with letters at Santa Ana High school.

Under a new system, explained today by Coach Reece Greene, eight of the Saints who were outstanding in the middleweight division will receive varsity recognition with 11 other preps.

Class B athletes with three years of experience, or those good enough to establish new school records or to place in the Coast league and Southern California meets, are entitled to the larger monogram, Coach Greene believes. Many of these middleweights wanted to compete with the varsity, but the coaching staff preferred keeping them in their own division for most meets.

The Saints will select a 1937 captain within the near future.

Edward Velarde, manager, and his assistants, Robert Cooper and Danny Frias, will receive 1936 letters along with the following:

Varsity

Capt. Blas Mercurio, Harry Adams, Bernie Granados, Jim Johnson, Walt Opp, Al Patterson, Ernest Price, Harold Short, Leonard Stafford, Fred Titensor, Erwin Youel, Elson Gaebe, Dalton Lutz, Mitsuo Nitta, Dwight Nott, Herschel Whitney, Byram Bates, Larry Dresser and Fred Pimental.

Class B

Jim Elliott, Worth Elliott, Tom Engelman, Eugene Hamaker, Bill Hemmen, Ray Herman, Nathan Levens, George Ogata, Pete Partida, Carroll Richardson, Charles Sawyer, Tom Shoemaker, Wendell Tedrow, Dearing Waggener, Kenneth Warren, Frank Was and Marvin Webb.

Class C

S. A. Clark, 73-year-old Santa Anan, reputedly the strongest man in the world for his age, will perform a variety of stunts as a featured part of Santa Ana Junior college's first annual sports carnival in Andrews gymnasium on the high school campus Saturday night.

Mickey Riley, nationally-known diver who won Olympic Games honors in '32, will give a demonstration in the high school plunge, and there will be amateur boxing and wrestling, tumbling and Japanese fencing and jiu jitsu.

The event is being sponsored by the Junior Lions, young men's service club, under the direction of Dick Mather, chairman, and John Henry.

HEAVIES MIX AT HIGHWAY FIGHT RING

Oliver McCarter, Ken Holiday, Badge Diaz On Supporting Card

A story-book yarn of the prize ring, or the rise to fistic fame and glory, may be enacted before the eyes of Orange county boxing followers tonight when Fullerton's caveman, Lupe LeMon, crawls through the ropes and Art (Battling) Johnson shuffles across the ring to meet him in the four-round headliner of an eight-bout card at the highway 101 arena.

The fight may produce an O. Henry ending, for tonight Johnson receives his first big chance to make good in the heavyweight ranks and perhaps at the expense of the most rugged and colorful heavyweight now doing his chores in Southern California amateur rings. Johnson is S. P. A. A. W. champion.

LeMon Walked Out

Two weeks ago LeMon walked out on the same match because he claimed Johnson was "too light" for him.

Observers claimed Lupe feared Johnson was too fast and clever for him over the four-round route, despite the fact that six months ago LeMon scored a close win over this same Johnson. However, since that time Johnson has improved to such an extent that he is considered the greatest lad of his weight boxing in Southland amateur rings. LeMon also has improved, backed by some followers as the most sensational two-fisted heavyweight on the Pacific coast.

Seven Other Bouts

Whatever the outcome of tonight's fight, fans should be treated to a whale of a battle and one that will go down as near a classic as has been staged at the 101 highway club.

A strong supporting card of seven bouts backs up the feature with Ken Holiday returning to fistic wars to tackle Willie Walker; Joe Orona and Al Garcia tangling for the third time; Carl Hill of San Bernardino mixing with Badge Diaz and the popular and sensational former jaysee football star, Oliver McCarter opposing his most dangerous foe, Joey Watson. Other favorites are on the card which gets under way promptly at 8:30 p. m.

COUNTY LEAGUE NINES CLASH

Either Anaheim or Placentia must sacrifice its Orange County league nightball leadership tonight when the winners of the first round collide on the Placentia field at 8 o'clock.

Ernie Lagier's Irvine players, who share a three-way tie as the result of their 12-4 downfall of San Juan Capistrano Monday, motor to Huntington Beach for a test with Paul Bowen's Baby Oilers who were beaten 13-7 in a first-round slugfest at Anaheim.

Brea, whose bobbles on defense helped Placentia pile up an 8-2 command Monday, plays Chet Congdon's Missions at San Juan Capistrano in the third game.

'Freak Weather Beat Us,' Say U. S. Women Golfers

By GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer

SOUTHPORT, Eng., May 21.—Until Great Britain's golfing weather takes a remarkable turn for the better and British golfing officials can be talked into "seeding" their draw sheets any American woman who wins the British championship will be plain, everyday lucky.

That's the unanimous opinion of the eight American Curtis cup stars who took the customary tanning in the big event in the last three days. They were a dispirited crew today as a pair of Britons, Bridget Newell and Pamela (Pam) Barton battled it out for the title.

Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, who was beaten in the first round, was so disappointed in the general run of events, that she didn't even watch Marion Miley of Lexington, Ky., the last of the Americans, go down slugging in the quarter-finals yesterday.

Woozy Weather

All of them, even down to the usually irrepressible Patty Berg of Minneapolis, talked as though they didn't care if they never gave the British championship another whirl.

While wishing to take nothing from their conquerors, the Americans admitted they were handicapped by the dizzy weather which varied from hot to frigid in the course of a single round.

"You can't tell whether to start out wearing four sweaters or a bathing suit," said Mrs. Opal Hill, the veteran of the octette. "Under such conditions none of us could play our best game consistently. I, personally, was beaten because my opponent holed more putts."

None of them however believes the British contention that their women as a group are better golfers, at least not since Joyce Wethered and Enid Wilson retired from the amateur ranks.

Alibis Varied

Some of the Americans were plagued as well throughout the tournament by poor caddies, Mrs. Hill using up no fewer than four. They were forced to use carriers assigned by the caddy master after the pick of the bag-toters long since had been grabbed by the Britons.

After much thought, Mrs. Maureen Orcutt Crews of Coral Gables, Fla., decided that a combination of change in climate and food was responsible for the Americans' failure.

Mrs. Leona Cheney of Santa Monica, Calif., ascribed it partially to the "unfriendly" attitude of the gallery which always was pulling for the Britons.

Patty Berg, however, in the final analysis, gave the best personal reaction of them all:

"I'm so far over-rated that I'm just still trying to catch up," she smiled.

Homeless Aviators Win First Round in Court Here

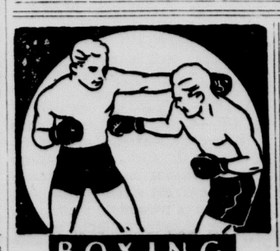

First round in the court fight over the Westminster ball park went by a narrow margin to Francis Penhall and his homeless Aviators yesterday afternoon, when Superior Judge G. K. Scovel sustained a demurrer to the petition seeking a writ of prohibition which would throw the park open to the public.

District Attorney W. F. Menton argued in his general demurrer that the complaint filed by E. B. Finley on behalf of a group of anti-chamber of commerce Westminster residents had failed to state sufficient cause of action for the issuing of a writ of prohibition.

The temporary writ now in effect forbids the charging of admission or exclusion of any part of the public to the ball park, which is built on property deeded 28 years ago to the county for park purposes only.

Judge Scovel in sustaining the demurrer allowed one week for the filing of an answer.

Attorneys for the complainants indicated immediately that instead of amending the complaint they would re-file it, asking for a writ of injunction, which would specify the same performance on the part of the board of supervisors, who nominally control the park.

RAPLOBBYING BY COTTON'S FRIEND

San Clemente Leader's Pal Faces Trouble in Work for L. A. Job

Hamilton Cotton's close friend, Joe Freeman, will run into strong head winds when he arrives at Washington to lobby, at $50 a day, for the Los Angeles $70,000,000 flood control project. The head winds will come from six Los Angeles congressmen who have criticized employment of the San Clemente financier's friend as "a wanton waste of the taxpayers' money." The Los Angeles board of supervisors, who hired Mr. Freeman, also have been soundly rapped by the congressmen.

Orange county's action in sending a representative to Washington on behalf of its flood control project took place several weeks ago and the protesting congressmen indicated there would have been no criticism if Los Angeles had sent a lobbyist at that time.

Wire Rebuke

The congressmen wired a rebuke to Chairman Legge of the Los Angeles board. Most of the congressmen agreed that there would have been no objection to sending someone to Washington with "helpful information" earlier in the season when the omnibus flood control bill was before the senate commerce committee. However, it is expected the bill will be passed by the senate this week with the Los Angeles project in it, without assistance of Mr. Cotton's friend Freeman.

Orange county sent George B. Malone, consulting engineer, to Washington several weeks ago to work on behalf of this county's $13,000,000 flood control project, which is part of the omnibus bill. Later Supervisor Willard Smith went back to work with him.

Mr. Malone was hired on the basis of $250 a month when he was working for the county, plus $50 a day for time actually spent on the job, and expenses. He spent 21 days going and coming and working at the capitol.

No Malone Criticism

There was no congressional criticism of Mr. Malone's employment, he having been at Washington when the omnibus bill was before the commerce committee.

"As soon as the bill was reported out of the committee, we came back," Supervisor Smith said today.

The Los Angeles county move at this time was characterized by the congressmen as "unnecessary, ineffectual and unwarranted by the circumstances." The board was urged to rescind its action. The telegram of protest was signed by Representative Scott, Long Beach; Costello, Hollywood; Ford, Dockweiler, Golden and Hoeppel of Los Angeles.

HOEPPEL WINS STRONG ALLY

WASHINGTON, May 21. (AP) Representative Burdick (R. Minn.) suggested today the indictment and conviction of Representative John H. Hoeppel (D. Calif.) on charges of conspiriing to sell a West Point appointment may have been the result of "another one of the administration's political purge cases."

"If this case was in fact engineered to put Hoeppel out of the way and stop his free speech, then I say a great crime has been committed," Burdick said in the Congressional Record.

"I do not know," Burdick added, "whether the administration in some roundabout way influenced the proceedings thus far or not, but it does seem peculiar that one who was openly opposed to the administration should be the one who was proceeded against."

Hoeppel and a son, Charles, were convicted last December on an indictment charging conspiracy to sell a West Point appointment to James W. Ives of Baltimore for $1000. Their conviction was upheld Monday by the court of appeals for the District of Columbia. Representative Hoeppel announced he would take the case to the supreme court.

Citing Hoeppel's "staunch friendship" for the Townsend plan, the soldier's bonus, the Frazier-Lemke bill and other legislation and his opposition to the national economy act, Burdic asserted:

"The first thing that happened to indicate that his independence was not approved was the taking away of his political patronage in the state of California. This was handed over to the junior senator (Senator McAdoo) from that state."

St. Anne's Adds To Its Staff

Appointment of Clyde C. Musgrave as manager of the new refrigerator department at St. Anne's in the Arcade, 515 North Main street, was announced today by the proprietor of the store, who also said St. Anne's has been appointed distributor for the new Crosley Shelvador refrigerator, radio and washing machines.

CONGRESS TO RECESS FOR CONVENTIONS

WASHINGTON, May 21. (AP)—Democratic leaders on Capitol hill said today that congress would recess during the national political conventions if the session has not adjourned when the conventions meet.

They still were hopeful of winding up the session in time for the Republican convention June 9, but conceded there was no certainty it could be done.

LONG 'DEAD' SOLDIER ALIVE

Vet Is Found After 26 Years

CHEYENNE, Wyo., May 21. (AP) Twenty-six years ago young Charles Brizendine left his home near Chester, Pa., and joined the United States army.

That was the last his family heard of him, except for two short messages from the war department, during the World war, telling them he was "missing in action" and had been "killed in action."

Five weeks ago, Brizendine, one of the partners in the Brizendine and Boyce ranch, west of here, was admitted to the veterans' hospital here for treatment. He gave the names of members of his family to hospital attaches. The veterans' bureau sent letters to them at Chester, but they had moved.

Last week one of the notification letters caught up with a sister, Mrs. J. D. Padgett, at Roanoke, Va., and today, Mrs. Padgett, a brother, Sid Brizendine, and two other sisters were here. They started west the day after learning of their brother's whereabouts.

Mrs. Padgett said that after the war department's notification that her brother had been killed in action she had "heard he was still alive, but we never were able to locate him until the veterans' bureau notified us where he was."

WESTERN IS DUE AT WALKER'S

It is a story of a Texas ranger who solves a cattle-rustling mystery and clears his father who was unjustly accused of theft. He arrives at the scene of the trouble too late to save his father, but he avenges his death by settling with the rustlers and clears other innocent men accused of cattle thieving. And topping off the story, he wins the hand of a beautiful young girl.

In the cast with him are Joan Perry, Wheeler Oakman, Edward Le Saint, Lafe McKee and Charles Locher.

Other features on tomorrow's bill are a Popeye cartoon, "Spinach Overture;" a Leon Errol comedy, "Home Work," chapter No. 6 of "The Miracle Rider," and a newsreel.

OLIVE SCHWEITZER RETURNS FROM EASTERN TRIP

Miss Olive Eleanor Schweitzer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Schweitzer, 1315 South Main street, has resumed her studies at junior high school this week, following her return Saturday from a five-weeks trip across the continent and into Mexico with her older brother, F. N. Schweitzer, and Mrs. Schweitzer.

Mexico City and the Grand Canyon were visited by the traveling trio before motoring east to visit relatives and friends in Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, Wisconsin, Denver, Salt Lake City and San Francisco. Mrs. F. N. Schweitzer remained in the east for a month's visit with relatives, before returning to California.

Judge Loans Belt So Mothers Can Spank Bad Boys

MADISONVILLE, Ky., May 21. (AP)—County Judge Charles E. Barnett's leather belt served as the lash with which three negro mothers and one grandmother carried out his sentence on five boys who stole some pop.

Arms akimbo to hold up his belt-less pants, Judge Barnett acted as referee of the whippings in the court house basement. After he ruled the punishment was satisfactory, his belt was returned.

Judge Barnett said he considered the punishment just as effective as sending the delinquents to a reform school.

COUNTY HAVING DAYS AT FAIR

Orange county this year will have two special days at the California Pacific International Exposition at San Diego, Dr. C. G. Huston of Costa Mesa, president of the associated chambers of commerce, announced today.

Saturday, May 30, will be observed as Orange county children's day at the exposition. The next day, May 31, will see the county sponsored at the exposition by the associated chambers. Complete details for the program have not been arranged, Dr. Huston said.

In honor of the special days the Santa Fe will operate excursion trains to and from the exposition city on both Saturday and Sunday, with special low rates prevailing, Claude Lindsey, district passenger agent for the railway company, announced.

On both special days the train will start from Buena Park at 6:45 a. m. It will pass through Fullerton at 7 o'clock, Anaheim 7:05, Orange 7:15 and Santa Ana 7:30, arriving at San Diego at 9:50. On Saturday the return trip will start at 6:30 p. m., the train arriving at Buena Park at 9:10.

On Sunday the return trip is scheduled to start after the evening illumination program at the exposition grounds, the train leaving probably at 9:30.

NEW DIX FILM AT BROADWAY

"Devils Squadron," a thriller picture of test pilots starring Richard Dix, Karen Morley and Shirley Ross will open a three day showing at the Fox Broadway theater tonight. The double bill program also brings "Law in Her Hands" with Margaret Lindsay, Glenda Farrell and Warren Hull.

A "March of Time" and the Fox news reel will complete the program.

"Devil's Squadron' is heralded as one of the fastest moving pictures ever filmed. It is filled with romance and excitement.

"Law in Her Hands," the second half of the double feature is a comedy full of fun and thrills. The picture literally starts with a bang when a racketeer hurls a bomb into a restaurant where the two feminine lawyers are being photographed at luncheon by a news cameraman.

This starts their career for they smash the gangster's alibi by producing the photograph which shows him just behind the two girls.

The double bill will close with Saturday night's performance.

PRISON BREAK LEADER TAKEN

McALESTER, Okla., May 21. (AP) Claude Beavers was brought back—alive—today to the state penitentiary where he engineered a savage break in which a foreman was killed and a guard wounded.

The convict leader, who boasted he never would be taken alive, surrendered without a show of resistance early today in the Jack Fork mountains near here.

"Here I am," he shoulted as "Old Boston," the prison's famed bloodhound, led five manhunters to his refuge in the brush.

"I give up," he shouted.

"I've thrown away my guns," he added, stepping into the open.

The capture of Beavers left only two of the eight original fugitives at large. Warden Roy W. Kenny called in all possemen, saying he was convinced the other two convicts, Julius Bohannon and A. C. McArthur, were not in this section.

'SHOWBOAT' AT WEST COAST

The semi-weekly change of films at the Fox West Coast theater brings one of the outstanding pictures of the year today. The 1936 version of Edna Ferber's Show Boat will open tonight starring Irene Dunne and Allan Jones with a supporting cast which includes Charles Winninger, Paul Robeson, Helen Morgan and Helen Westley.

The Show Boat has been booked by Manager Lester Fountain for a solid week's run, concluding showing being next Wednesday night.

In the Universal version of Show Boat, the story of Kim, Magnolia's daughter, is presented, completing the cycle of Capt. Andy Hawks' show boat family.

While the stage play revealed Kim only as a child, the film shows her as a grownup girl who has inherited her mother's talent for singing and dancing. Magnolia finds renewed happiness in the triumph scored by her daughter in a musical revue. Irene Dunne is starred as Magnolia and Sunnie O'Dea portrays the matured Kim.

Various dances are featured in Show Boat including Stomps, shuffles, sand dances, buck-and-wings and cakewalks.

The program is rounded out with a second feature, "And So They were Married," featuring Mary Astor and Mekwyn Douglas. A color cartoon, "By the Old Mill Stream" and a news reel complete the program.

EXPERT SAYS AUTO BUYERS ARE BECOMING 'CAREFUL'

Members of the Santa Ana Motor Car Dealers association received with interest here today the statement of T. J. Smith, nationally known market analyst and author of many articles on "How to Select a Used Car." Mr. Smith arrived today in Los Angeles and said:

"Used car buyers in increasing numbers are daily taking greater cognizance of the importance of selecting the best dealer before finally completing their purchase."

Mr. Smith has just completed an extensive trip through Coast cities during which he surveyed used car marketing conditions from the buyer's viewpoint in collecting material for use in connection with articles he is preparing for national magazine releases.

Warns of Abuses

He states that upwards of 15,000 used cars are being put into the hands of new owners each month in Southern California. He feels that such an expanded market is worthy of considerable analysis as to business practices employed, especially by the buyers, if they are to protect their investment.

Unfortunately there are no standards for the grading of used cars, he said, although the business is badly in need of such standards. The word 'used' was adopted to soften the meaning of second-hand, third-hand, etc. which are a little more accurate, but not fully descriptive, as a used car is any car, he said.

Like Reputation

He states that his survey shows that not very many buyers and not even many sellers are very well informed about the mechanical side of an automobile and that they are, therefore, not competent to pass upon the qualities of a motor or judge of the soundness of the complicated parts of the machine. Therefore, Smith feels that it is extremely important that the used car buyer use great care in selecting the dealer from whom the purchase is to be made. It being especially important that he have a good reputation for standing back of the cars he sells, and the buyer should be certain that the dealer has a reputation for truthfulness, and that he can deliver clear title to the car, he said.

His survey further shows that in this regard the used car buyer is becoming more particular and generally is shunning the practice of just buying anywhere without regard for dealer's reputation and that most people now prefer to purchase from authorized new car dealers who have a reputation for fair dealing in the community.

In this regard, Smith states that in most every locality he found varying numbers of used car dealers of ill repute who are using all sorts of tricks and devices to sell their merchandise.

ASK AMATEUR DIRECTOR TO BE PRESENT

Municipal Bowl Barbecue Will Be Free; 'First Come, First Served'

Partial menu for Santa Ana's 50th anniversary barbecue—

Buns, beans, barbecued beef, coffee, and Major Bowes.

Today Rodney Bacon, of Mayor Fred Rowland's committee, arranging the 50 years of progress party, sent a telegram to Major Bowes, asking the famous amateur program promoter to be Santa Ana's guest at its birthday party in the muncipal bowl June 3.

Menu to Be Free

The telegram told Major Bowes that 40,000 people will be celebrating at the jubilee event, and assured him that the barbecued beef, buns, ice cream and coffee will be free.

In fact, said Mr. Bacon today, the committee of which Dr. Melbourne Mabee is general chairman wishes it to be known that this will be a city-wide party and that the above menu will be free. It is expected that approximately 2000 people will attend the barbecue.

To Issue Tickets

In order that there will be no confusion, tickets will be issued, free. These probably will be available at the city hall on the basis of first come, first served.

Old-timers will be special guests at the affair. There will be a sparkling program. Arrangements are being made to have service clubs hold joint meetings at the bowl. The project was launched by Dr. Mabee as president of the Kiwanis club.

Williams Names Edwards, Landonite, as Alternate For Uninstructed Ticket

A puzzler for those who figure there is war between the Landon forces and the Earl Warren forces in California Republican circles:

It was learned from an authentic source today that Judge R. Y. Williams, Orange county representative on the uninstructed (Warren) delegation which will go to the Republican convention, plans to name as his alternate Senator N. T. Edwards of Orange, Orange county candidate for the defeated delegation supporting Gov. Alf Landon's candidacy.

The uninstructed delegates are scheduled to meet Sunday at Del Monte. It is understood that Senator Edwards must be there at that time for confirmation of his appointment by Judge Williams. Isaac Jones, Ontario, delegate from San Bernardino county, will name Charles Brouse of Riverside as his alternate.

The uninstructed delegation was successful in the California primary election and will go to the convention to help pick the party's presidential candidate.

Rancho Lomas de Santiago Granted by Pio Pico

(In an effort to acquaint residents of Orange county with some of their most-prized historic possessions, The Journal is publishing a series of daily articles on county landmarks. Today's article tells about Rancho Lomas de Santiago.—Editor).

Tiodosio Yorba received a grant of Rancho Lomas de Santiago in 1846 from Pio Pico, last governor of California under Mexican rule. The grant of 11 leagues contained what is now Irvine park and the site of Santiago dam on Santiago creek, above the park.

It is now part of the Irvine ranch. The rancho did not have an ocean frontage, occupying the portion of the county east of Rancho San Joaquin, described yesterday in this department The Journal.

The Pleasants history of Orange county has gleaned interesting facts about land measurements of those days from a photostatic copy of the title of the grant. The property was measured by two official cordeleros or cord bearers. They used a cord 100 varas in length, or approximately 100 yards, probably made of two lariats tied together.

Quoting, the Pleasants history says, "The cord was stretched from a small red hill, the boundary of Don Jose Sepulveda, and in an east direction seven degrees to the south; and they measured and counted 17,500 varas along the while length of the boundary of said Sepulveda. The measurements of the grant were continued in the manner until the whole tract was measured, and in conclusion, Don Leonardo says, 'I gave solemn and judicial possession in the name of the Mexican nation to Don Tiodosio Yorba, who was satisfied; and thus concluded the act, which I authorized and signed with my assistants.'"

INDIAN TALK ENDS WORLD STUDY SESSIONS

Speaking from first-hand experience gained as the wife of a doctor for 16 Indian reservations in the San Diego mountains, Mrs. H. L. Hildreth, of Julian, yesterday afternoon addressed members of the World study group of the First Congregational church, meeting at the home of Mrs. A. L. Schelhaus, Newport road, Tustin.

She displayed craftwork and novelties made by the reservation Indians, whose customs and training were described by Mrs. Hildreth. Mrs. Robert Korff played, as flute solos, "Land of the Sky Blue Waters," and "By the Waters of Minnetonka." Mrs. Vincent Humiston accompanied her on the piano.

Refreshments were served by Mesdames Schelhaus, Carrie Watson, Frank Albrecht, Perry F. Schrock, and Ivor McFarlane. Omission of monthly meetings until September was announced.

Y. L. I. JUNIORS WILL MEET TONIGHT TO ORGANIZE

To select a name and officers for the Junior Y. L. I. to be established as an adjunct to Capistrano Y. L. I., Mrs. Robert Sandon will receive a group of girls between the ages of 12 and 18 at her home, 1410 West Washington street, this evening at 7 o'clock.

Practice meeting of the new organization is to be held at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the K. of C. hall, as a preliminary session before officers and members are installed at 10 o'clock Sunday morning in the K. of C. hall.

Mrs. Claire Hart Dunn, Junior Institute committee chairman, is expected to arrive from San Francisco to conduct the installation. All prospective members of the younger group are to attend 7 o'clock mass at St. Joseph's church, followed by breakfast at the Doris Kathryn tea room.

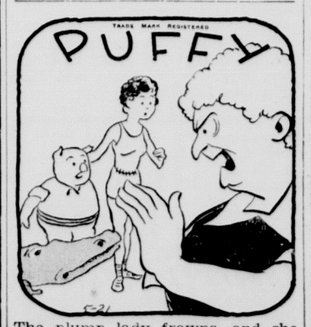

Capistrano Y. L. I. members planning to attend the breakfast are asked to make reservations with Miss Margaret Young, 1206, or Mrs. Clyde Ashen, 0982-M, before noon Saturday.

CHURCH MEN TO COOK FOR WIVES

How can a man be expected to "keep his hand in" at cooking, without practice? To retain their culinary skill, men members of the Service club of the Advent Christian church surprise their wives, daughters and sisters now and then by taking entire charge of the group's monthly dinner.

Friday evening, at 6:30 o'clock, the men will serve dinner, details of which are being kept secret in the chef's ranks. Harry Hanson, president of the club, and Hubert Howell are taking reservations for the affair.

After dinner, J. L. Criswell, Alaska steamship lines representative, will show a travelogue motion picture of Alaska. The showing has been arranged through the local World travel bureau. The program, starting at 7:30 p. m., is open to the public.

BREAK FACES SOCIALIST RANKS

Rightwing Leaders In Threat to Organize New Marxian Party

CLEVELAND, May 21. (AP)—A group of fighting "old guard" leaders in the Socialist party laid the groundwork today for what may become a new American Marxist party.

Supported principally by rightwing factions in Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania and Connecticut, a call was issued for an "interstate Socialist conference" tomorrow, on the eve of the party's national convention.

Three Issues

Three principal issues to be discussed at the conference are:

1. The dispute between the "old guard" and the left coalition, led by Norman Thomas, in New York state; and the strategy to be followed in the efforts to seat the "old guard" delegation from New York, in place of the leftist delegates.

2. The so-called "revolutionary declaration of principles" adopted at Detroit in 1934, which the rightwingers claim is Communist in scope.

2. The question of a "united front" with Communists in local instances, such as May day demonstrations or anti-Fascist campaigns.

Rightwing's Threat

In New York, the rightwing "old guard" forces, led by Louis Waldman, trade union attorney, were defeated in the April primary and lost control of the state and city organizations. The national committee recognized the victorious left-wing organizations—but the "old guard" has refused to do so.

If the delegates of the Waldman faction are not seated in the convention, they are prepared to leave Cleveland and organize a new Marxian party at a convention, probably late in June, at some place in New York.

ASK COUZENS TO RUN AS DEMOCRAT

Bourbons of Michigan Give Senator Their Indorsement

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., May 21. (AP)—United States Sen. James Couzens, a Republican who faces vigorous opposition for renomination within his own party, had an invitation today to enter the Democratic primary next September.

In Washington, Senator Couzens received without comment the news that the state Democratic pre-primary convention had indorsed him, along with five Democrats, for the senatorial nomination. He has made no announcement of his plans.

Blanket Indorsement

The implied invitation to the Republican senator was contained in a blanket indorsement of all who have been mentioned as possible candidates. The Democrats named are Rep. Prentiss M. Brown (D., Mich.), former Gov. William A. Comstock, Frank A. Picard, who was defeated by Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg (R.), in 1934, Ray D. Schneider, Wayne county auditor, and John H. Muyskens, a University of Michigan instructor.

The Democrats, who were holding their formal state convention today to elect eight delegates at large, each with half a vote, to the national convention, heard Postmaster Gen. James A. Farley predict that "the governor of a typical prairie state" would be the Republican presidential nominee.

Landon Indicated

He did not name the candidate, but Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas is the only mid-western state executive prominently mentioned now as a possible presidential nominee.

One faction of Michigan Democrats has insisted that the national administration seeks the nomination by the Democrats of Couzens for senator, and Frank Murphy, former Detroit mayor and now United States commissioner to the Philippines, for governor. Farley disclaimed such an intention in an interview yesterday.

LEWIS WANTS NEW GUFFEY ACT PASSED

Asks Immediate Action To Replace Voided Coal Measure

WASHINGTON, May 21. (AP)—John L. Lewis, mine union leader, swung behind the proposed new Guffey coal control act today in an effort to have congress pass it immediately instead of waiting until next session.

The act concentrates on price-fixing and omits the labor provisions which were outlawed by the supreme court. Despite the absence of labor clauses, Lewis declared that his United Mine Workers would "join in requesting congress to enact the bill at once" as the best step to take in the circumstances.

He said it would "operate to maintain the equilibrium of the coal industry pending further study of stabilization of the industry."

Senator Guffey (D., Pa.) introduced the legislation yesterday as a substitute for the original Guffey act. The supreme court had ruled that provisions for regulation of hours, wages and other labor conditions conflicted with states' rights.

Although Guffey conferred with Secretary of Labor Perkins on the question of putting some labor provisions into the bill, he expressed the belief nothing could be added along that line in view of the high court's stand.

Miss Perkins also agreed it would be "exceedingly difficult," but added that she was considering several ideas, the nature of which she did not disclose.

To the motorist who thinks that anyone can "grease" a car, we have a friendly warning: Every car, every model, requires individual treatment in lubrication. The ordinary grease job too often overlooks factory specifications. Points that are forgotten, or where the wrong type of lubricant has been used, soon lead to trouble—sometimes a serious breakdown.

Factory-Specified—an individual service

When you take your car to the Smiling Associated Dealer who displays the "Factory-Specified" sign, he lubricates it exactly as the manufacturer intended. He uses the individual factory lubrication chart of your car. Nothing is overlooked. He sees to it that everything about your car is right for you to enjoy all the pleasures of Associated motoring.

PATSY BETH McGEE HONORED UPON BIRTHDAY

Complimenting her daughter, Patsy Beth, on her twelfth birthday, Mrs. W. P. McGee entertained a group of the little girl's friends Tuesday afternoon at the McGee cabin in Silverado canyon.

For the occasion, the cabin was decorated with wild flowers. A long table was arranged in the living room, beneath the pine-cone and fern-sheathed chandelier. Extending from the cones were ribbons attached to gifts at each place for the young guests.

After luncheon had been served, the children hiked through the canyon, returning to toast marshmallows and pop corn before the huge fireplace. In the party were Dorothy Kelly, Beverly Roland, Roberta McBurney, Kathleen Sauls, Marvis Ann Swensen, Cecelia Earel, Barbara Brown, Marjorie Adkinson, Mary Lou McGee, William McGee jr., and the guest of honor.

MISS VIOLA GROUT TELLS ENGAGEMENT

Announcement of the engagement of Miss Marjorie Viola Grout, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Roscoe Grout, North Main street, Orange, and Royal Gammell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Franc Gammell, Santa Ana, was made Wednesday afternoon, when Miss Grout and her mother entertained in their ranch home.

Cootie and tango were the games played, with Miss Dorothy Gammell and Miss Dorothy Faye Baker awarded prizes. Corsages were given the guests bearing tiny scrolls, on which was written, "Royal and Viola, June 21."

Other guests were Mrs. Franc Gammell and Miss Ellen Tillotson, Santa Ana; Miss Donalda Dollard, Miss Haze Morrow, Miss Cora Alice Powell and Miss Esta Noble, Orange.

How Can Mother Make Child Practice for His Future Enjoyment and Ability?

By MARY STODDARD

There's a long, long letter in the morning mail from Johnnie's mother. She's an ardent member of the Preschool circle and active in her P.-T. A. She's been an ideal, understanding mother, but she's failed.

Johnnie is becoming a laggard. He won't practice, although three years ago he wanted very much to play the piano. His parents scrimped to get the piano and now Johnnie is becoming a puzzle to his well-meaning mother.

Actually it is almost impossible to hold out abstracts to children as bait. They cannot view the rainbow land beyond the hills of hard work.

There is a type of child who loves plugging for its own sake, but he is rare. Either he has some particular affinity for the task or he has an enlarged bump of duty.

And so, since it gets us nowhere to say "Some day you'll be glad, Johnnie, that I made you practice, when you are leading an orchestra," or "Mary, how you will thank me some day because I taught you to cook. Now you will be a good wife and mother"—since this is almost useless, is it permissible to use synthetic spurs to coax lax minds and fingers along the path to success?

I think so. Morever, it is being done all the time.

Homer never worked on his grammar. He has always been a careless speaker, but he has a good mind and quick wit, so he enters the debating society headed by Mark, his rival. Suddenly Homer has a consuming ambition to study English. He is going to beat Mark at his own game.

Johnnie won't practice. Then he hears that there is to be a recital. He pictures people saying, "Did you ever hear anything so beautiful as Johnnie Jones' rendition of 'Rustle of Spring?'" Johnnie buckles down to work, his spur to conscience is vanity.

Personally, we don't think it wise to force any child to worry with an extra-curricular job, let us say, like music, dancing, public speaking, or a special study, for which he has the highest distaste and complete lack of affinity. When it is said that "A woman has the privilege of changing her mind" it also goes for the child with its plastic mind. When he can't get the first principles after a fair try, it seems nonsense to think the time on it well spent.

Naturally he has to get all the rudiments of literacy and a protective knowledge in general. But barring the school program, why add to misery and misspent time? Children won't excel by our wishing, I'm sorry to inform this well-meaning mother. Parents are often right, in fact, more right than wrong, as a class.

However, encouraging the child over rough places, I do not discount the "vision" of maturity. And it does happen that many a child, grown to success, owes his happiness and glory to a mother's sense and clear eyes.

KAPPA DELTA PHI PLEDGES ARE HOSTESSES

Kappa Delta Phi sorority members were complimented by four pledges of the organization at a five-course dinner and bridge party Tuesday evening at the Doris Kathryn tea room.

The Misses Jean Gaspar, Elizabeth Roehm, Merlene Moody and Mrs. W. R. Boatman were the quartet of attracive hostesses. They presented ice box flowers to each guest.

Members completed plans for formal initiation ceremonies, to be held Saturday at the home of Mrs. Walter Stark, 401 East Bishop street. Following the rites, pledges and their escorts will be complimented at a formal dance at the Pacific Coast club, Long Beach.

Those present Tuesday evening, in addition to the hostesses, were Mesdames Meredith Crumley, Walter Stark, Charles Woodfield, Roderick Smiley, and the Misses Marcene Cook, Louise Pee, Jo Anne Schott, and Gerry Beach.

MRS. BRADLEY FETES HER BRIDGE CLUB AT PRETTY PARTY

Mrs. George Bradley entertained her bridge club at a dessert party yesterday afternoon in the home of her mother, Mrs. J. L. McBride, Spurgeon street.

Flowers were used on the dessert tables. Mrs. Gilbert Meisinger and Miss Loretta Spangler scored in bridge play.

Other guests were Mrs. Frank Hilligass, Mrs. Q. L. Hardy, Mrs. W. W. Barnett, Mrs. Bruce Harding, Mrs. Joseph Irwin and Miss Charlene Lowell.

Mrs. J. Pankey Entertains Teachers

In the cool, inviting patio of her Skyland drive home in Lemon Heights, Mrs. J. H. Pankey entertained at tea yesterday afternoon, complimenting Tustin high school teachers and P.-T. A. executive board and committee members.

Mrs. Clarence Nisson assisted the hostess in receiving and during the afternoon's program. She gave a three-part musical reading, "A Black, Bluegrass Widow." Mrs. Robert Korff accompanied her, and later played old Southern melodies on the flute.

Mr. Pankey and their son, Edgar Pankey, Pomona college student, were at home for the day, to greet the guests, many of them teachers under whom the young man studied at the Tustin school.

Spanish coloring of the patio was emphasized by the embroidered Spanish cloth spread on the tea table and centered by an orange pottery bowl filled with coreopsis and cornflowers, flanked by orange holders supporting blue tapers.

French pastries, ice cream loaf, dainty wafers, mints, nuts and tea were served in bright pottery dishes by Mrs. D. D. Adams and Mrs. Frank Greenwood. Mrs. E. C. Eustis and Mrs. J. C. Marshall presided at the tea table.

Guests included Messrs. and Mesdames W. J. Means, George Kyle, Charles Brisco, Vincent Humiston, E. E. Byrne, Ralph Cole, Robert Korff, Mesdames Howard Timmons, Hugh Plumb, Dixon Tubbs, M. J. P. Hill, Archie Robinson, E. E. Ulrich, L. A. Crafts, Ernest Crozier Phillips, Frank Greenwood, D. D. Adams, Gilbert Martien, L. R. Wilson, B. J. McReynolds, Lynn Ostrander, W. C. Cook, J. S. Marshall, Clarence Nisson, Mae Borum, Elsie Daley, Charles Bowman, Ralph Stone, Charles Archer, E. A. Watson, Dora Glines, Glenn S. Warner, and Misses Madge Stephens, Clara MaComber, Emma Hield, Elsie Hull, Frances Parks, Stella Yocum, Grace Shults, Mary E. McVey, and Mae Rose Borum, and Clarence Bowman.

Formal Party Given By Sorority

Santa Ana Country club was the setting chosen by Sigma Tau Psis for their formal initiation and dinner party last evening.

Mrs. Herbert Hill, who wore a fuschia taffeta gown, was in charge of initiatory rites. She was assisted by Miss Betty Rowland. Initiates were Miss Jewell Thebeau, in peach net; Miss Jean Barry, black velvet accented in white, and Mrs. Don Harrison, pink satin. Corsages of yellow roses, sorority flower, went to each initiate.

After the ritual, the group adjourned to the dining room of the clubhouse. Here a festive table was centered with a mass of yellow flowers and greenery in the sorority colors, bordered by tall candelabra holding tapers in the two hues. A crested bracelet went to each of the initiates.

Music interest was evinced in the latest issue of the "Sigma Sighs" magazine, which was distributed and proved to be filled with news of the national convention, June 23-25 at Westwood.

Later, the crowd motored to the E. R. Majors home on North Flower, and cootie was played. Miss Jean Rowland and Mrs. Herbert Hill won prizes.

Last Thursday, informal initiation took place in the C. B. Hill home on Newport boulevard. Mrs. Ralph Jenkins, Mrs. Fayette Birtcher, Mrs. Lee Hasenjaeger, Miss Fern Berkner and Miss Virginia Graves, latest additions to the sorority membership, had charge of the initiation. Miss Jean Rowland and Mrs. Birtcher served a midnight supper.

Others attending the two parties were Mrs. Edward Sugden, Mrs. W. W. Barnett, Mrs. Bruce Vegely, Mrs. Tommy Jentges and Misses Georgia Turner, Genevieve Glover, Mary Emil and Alyse Majors, Harriett Chapin, Jane Hill and Marjorie Bernker.

STOCKS PLOD UPWARD IN DULL DAY

News Optimistic, But Traders Remain Wary And Timid Yet

By VICTOR EUBANK

NEW YORK, May 21. (AP)—The plodding recovery gained further headway in today's stock market.

While trading continued at a snail's pace the utilities and scattered industrials were bid up fractions to a point or more.

The general run of news was still on the optimistic side, but most buyers were wary and sellers timid.

Among the principal share gainers at the approach of the fourth hour were American Telephone, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, Public Service of New Jersey, American Water Works, J. I. Case, Westinghouse, Johns-Manville, Gimbel, American Can, Allied Stores, Continental Can, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central and Northern Pacific. The moors and steels were about unchanged and U. S. Industrial Alcohol, along with some others, was off a point or so.

Sentiment was aided by announcement that the Van Swearingen roads had placed orders for $13,500,000 of railway equipment, and that the labor and management representatives of the carriers had reached an agreement on methods of protecting employes displaced in rail consolidations.

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, May 21. (AP)—Except for a few utilities and industrial specialties, the stock market today retraced an early advance of fractions to a point or more and closed with an irregular tone.

The session was one of the slowest in more than a year, transfers approximating 600,000 shares.

March of Empire

F. D. R. TALKS TO LIBERAL SENATORS

WASHINGTON, May 21. (AP)—A three-hour White House conference between President Roosevelt and a group of senators generally designated as liberals, broke up early today with participants insisting politics was not mentioned.

"A general chat" was the description given to the long session by the senators.

They declared that among the subjects under discussion were economics, government, rural electrification, the supreme court, and the Guffey decision. The effect of sun spots on the weather also was mentioned, said Senator LaFollette (Prog., Wis.).

Others in on the conference were Senators Wagner (D., N. Y.), Wheeler (D., Mont.), Schwellenbach (D., Wash.), Minton (D., Ind.), Norris (R., Neb.), and Shipstead (F. L., Minn.). Felix Frankfurter of the Harvard law school, a presidetial consultant, was there also, but Norris said he was just "a listener."

Shipstead recalled that something had been said about the supreme court's decision which invalidated the Guffey coal control act, but the Farmer-Labor senator could not remember what it was.

Speculation had been aroused because of the fact that the senators, while representing four parties, all lean toward the New Deal.

LOCUSTS INVADE CAPITAL

And Wait Until They Sing!

WASHINGTON, May 21. (AP)—The British embassy has called on the United States for succor against an invasion—of 17-year locusts.

The Gardener of the embassy, noticing the locusts among his beloved shrubs and flowers, put in an urgent telephone call to the department of agriculture and invoked diplomatic immunity.

The official entomologists advised him today that the thing to do was just sit tight; the locusts, they said, are virtually harmless.

They warned, however, that the British diplomats, like other residents of the Eastern United States, must prepare for a long, loud and persistent serenade when the locusts begin courting next month.

The periodical cicada—17-year locusts—has begun to make its appearance in many parts of the east and the scientists said their telephones are literally jangling off the walls with calls from frantic gardeners.

Far from being bored or wearied by the calls, the scientists appeared happy over an opportunity of locusts last seen in 1919.

"We are asked what to do about the cicadas," a scientist said. "The answer is nothing. The damage they cause is negligible. There may be some damage to small trees, but that is all.

"The only harm they do is in cutting the bark of woody stems to deposit their eggs. If the egg deposits are too numerous on a small twig, the twig may drop off. But the locusts do absolutely no damage to flowers and vegetables.

"But wait until June. The cicada begins to sing in June and there is going to be quite a din in the Eastern United States."

The cicadas complete their mating and die off early in July, the scientist added somewhat sadly.

Orange Church Groups Meet

ORANGE.—Circles One and Two of the Methodist Aid society were entertained recently at the parsonage, with Mrs. Lulu Kenyon as cohostess with Mrs. Arthur T. Hobson, wife of the pastor.

Following luncheon, members quilted and sewed for a bazar. Mrs. John Moore is president of Circle number one, and Mrs. C. H. Adams, circle two.

Preparedness for Peace

WITH a definite armament race under way the world over, it is important that the United States continue to make necessary preparations for national defense.

This nation requires a strong coast defense, a navy and air defense adequate to turn away any invader, and an army so equipped and trained that, in case of emergency, it could rapidly expand into war strength, without the confusion and blunders which attended the formation of our army in the last war.

The idea that a well-protected country invites war is silly. Just the opposite is true. The world looks with envious eyes on our prosperity and wealth, on our vast expanses of rich land which could take care of its surplus population. A strong national defense serves as a sign "Hands off!" to those who would like to despoil us.

The fate of unarmed Ethiopia, coolly and calculatingly attacked and conquered, is the classic example in our time of what happened to an unarmed nation.

America does not want war, but it does want a red-blooded, virile peace, ready at all times to defend our homes and families.

America does not expect war, and hopes that it never comes. But when it does, we want to be prepared to deliver a smashing blow to those who attack us.

America stands for preparedness—not preparedness for war—but preparedness for peace.

Wonder if the new Townsend old age revolving pension party will have a revolving platform?

'Walk Out' Becomes 'Sit Down'

EVEN strike methods are going modern. At a big tire plant in Akron, between 1500 and 2000 workers are staging a "sit down" in protest to employment of a non-union sub-foreman.

The ordinary strike consists of a "walk-out," with strikers acting as pickets to block attempts to fill their vacant posts. But in the "sit down," the strikers occupy their regular places in the factory—and simply sit there until some sort of settlement is reached or some drastic action is taken.

Some good may come from the change, if it averts the disgraceful and often bloody clashes between pickets and company police or public authorities. But let's hope that America finds a way to adjust differences between employes and employers without resort to the wasteful strike—whether it be a "walk-out" or a "sit down."

Hospital Investigation

REPLYING to criticism of the Orange county hospital by a former patient, Superintendent Harry E. Zaiser invites the public to acquaint itself with the facts. Terming the censure false, Dr. Zaiser says:

"The hospital is always open for inspection at any time, in respect to food, living conditions, treatment of patients or anything else."

In inviting a public investigation of conditions at the hospital, Dr. Zaiser shows that he is confident the institution will be found up to its Class A rating in every department.

His suggestion that the inspection be made should be acted upon, we believe, if not officially, at least by individual citizens who are interested.

Let's Have No Delay

IT IS to be hoped that a lot of controversial measures will not gum up the works at the special session of the state legislature next Monday

Governor Merriam waited long enough as it is before summoning the law-makers to Sacramento to deal with the pressing shortage of state relief funds, and his four-point program is apparently too much for any one-day session to handle.

But since all of these urgent matters deal with the welfare problem, it is important that they be acted upon with the minimum of bickering and delays—lest the legislature be found guilty of toying with the safety and comfort of the state's under-privileged citizens.

Oranges for Gold

ORANGE COUNTY'S golden stream of valencia oranges has started to roll East again. More than 250 carloads of the fruit will be shipped this week under the prorate plan.

In return for the citrus, the East will send back some $20,000,000 cash, if returns run like they did last year. These dollars will go first to the thousands of men and women who provided the work, brains, land, and capital necessary to raise the crop and get it to market.

Then—like new blood—the cash pours into the channels of western trade—stimulating business and proving once again Orange county's great importance to California agriculture.

The Housing Problem

WE OF ORANGE COUNTY are proud of the fact that houses and apartments are getting mighty hard to find. We point at rising rents with a finger that spells prosperity to residents of less fortunate areas.

Nor are we altogether wrong. Vacant houses indicate depressions. Real estate activity is good for any community.

But let us house our residents. We must get busy and build houses and apartment houses so that new residents will not be discouraged by an endless search for comfortable dwellings.

Whimsies of O. O. McIntyre

O. O. McIntyre

This summer has marked the evanishment of nearly all the picturesque sidewalk salesmen along the Forty-second street library wall and the lower East Side. Of course many are off to trail circuses and carnival shows, but the majority, it is said, are on relief.

They are about last of the exponents of barter to be affected by depression. In the first dips of hard times they often prosper. The pitch men are a strange breed of nomads, generally sober, working hard for slim profits and living off to themselves. All suggest red sparks.

Most have monikers in the manner of hoboes. Such as Denver Pete, Silent Harry and Frisco Ned. Few marry, and when they have finished for the day may usually be found occupying chairs in the offices of those one-flight-up lodging houses. Or the Mills hotels.

Just as variety is the Bible of the performers, so is The Billboard the Koran of the pitchmen. There is a department conducted especially for them. Police records show pitch men are seldom mixed up in either major or minor crimes. And rarely does anyone see them smile.

Faith Baldwin seems out front as the year's most prolific writer without sacrificing quality for quantity. In 12 months she has authored two published novels, two serialized novels and three short stories. Aside from her literary endeavors, she extends a personal supervision over several growing children and somehow finds time to indulge at intervals her passion for fishing. Also keeps up with the latest plays and feminine styles.

New York's young spenders—there are still a few playboys left—are notoriously bad debtors. So much so many exclusive shops and tailors will not deliver goods, save C.O.D. It is true most pay eventually, but after several years and when accounts have been put in the hands of lawyers. Strangely enough, they will pay their cafe and bar chits promptly. Otherwise perhaps it would put a crimp in their showing off at "No. 21," the Colony and such.

* * *

Next to Broadway's evening throng, the biggest sidewalk jostle is on Fourteenth street where the entire neighborhood seems to promenade after dinner. The glittering shops are open until 11 and there is still that happy-go-lucky mood so pronounced when uptown New York came down to Tony Pastor's to see Maggie Cline, Harrigan and Hart, Pat Rooney, Lottie Gilson and The Four Cohans. From the barny, dark-timbered Luchow's there still drifts the strains of the floaty Straus waltzes and every few blocks a dime museum barker with a lion tamer's roach sings of wonders inside. Save for the more modern dress and the absence of horse and trolly cars, Fourteenth street remains much as it was 25 years ago.

* * *

There is a type of pavement moocher of Fourteenth street not found in any other section. He is well dressed, works with a well dressed girl and has an embarrassed approach. Somebody has picked his pocket and he needs enough to get himself and his wife to their Jersey suburb—he nods toward her, waiting tearfully in a doorway. He rarely fails to get from 50 cents to a dollar.

There's something about a floor walker! I approached one today to inquire for the men's hosiery department. He gave me one of his shriveling once-overs and to impress him I added: "Silk hose." And just then Harry Evans, to spoil everything, walked by and called out: "Hello, old sox!"

Remarkable Remarks

Politicians are all scum, in my estimation. . . That was not true of Lincoln and men of those days and of his caliber. But politicians have degenerated.—J. Edgar Hoover, director, federal bureau of investigation.

The Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, May 21.—On the surface, the Tennessee Valley authority has been as serene as the hills which tower behind Norris dam. Underneath, however, a bitter feud has been raging between two members of the three-man authority.

They are Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, chairman, and David E. Lilienthal, his associate. Policies are not involved. The two men just can't get along together.

Dr. Morgan, an engineer, and president-on-leave from Antioch college, has charge of the social-welfare phases of the great power project. He is trying to build up a new kind of power-minded community in the South.

Lilienthal, a lawyer, and former member of the Wisconsin public service commission, has directed TVA's distribution of power and the numerous legal battles which have attended it.

Young, brilliant, dynamic, Lilienthal has many strong admirers in the administration and congress, also is the most publicized of the three authority members.

Friends of Morgan say that Lilienthal is "aggressive and pushing," has been secretly trying to "undermine" the chairman, wants the place for himself.

Lilienthal's friends, on the other hand, accuse Morgan of jealousy, say he is a difficult man to get along with, is at loggerheads with other TVA officials.

* * *

ULTIMATUM

This undercover vendetta came to a head some weeks ago, when communication from the White House addressed to authority was turned over to Lilienthal by a TVA clerk. Morgan deeply resented this, considered it complete confirmation of his charge that Lilienthal was trying to usurp the chairmanship.

Whereupon he went to the President, asked him not to reappoint Lilienthal. Morgan actually intimated that if Lilienthal were renamed, he would quit. (His term still has six years to run.) Morgan also suggested several men as successors to Lilienthal, among them John L. Neeley, a TVA engineer.

The President, in turn, called in Senator Norris of Nebraska, as he does on all TVA problems. Norris urged the reappointment of Lilienthal regardless of anything Morgan said or did. If it were a choice between the two men, he told the President, he considered Lilienthal the more desirable.

The President informed Norris he would reappoint Lilienthal, but that he did not want to lose Morgan. He suggested that an effort be made to bring the two men together.

Mutual friends of the two TVAers have been working on them to this end. Last week, with the expiration of Lilienthal's term only three days away, Norris urged the senate agriculture committee to approve his reappointment, even though the President had not sent it to the senate. This is completely unprecedented. Traditionally the senate waits for the President to act first.

Nevertheless the committee in this case approved David Lilienthal unanimously.

REAL LOVE

Senator McAdoo wears a happy grin these days as he flits from place to place with his girl-bride. The senator, now 74 years old, affects nobby youthful clothes, tosses his hat half way across hotel lobbies to checkroom girls, kids waitresses, and mingles with cocktail sippers as capriciously as a college boy. It must be real love.

RITZY NEIGHBORS

The rural electrification administration, housed in the old home of James G. Blaine, recently had to pay the penalty of being in the swankiest residential district in the capital.

Administrator Morris L. Cooke has transformed the third floor of the Blaine mansion into a drafting room. There his engineers sit at their drawing boards in shirt-sleeevs, sometimes working late at night.

Apparently the neighbors of the late James G. Blaine do not believe in shirt-sleeves. They complained.

At first Cooke paid no attention. But the protests became so emphatic that finally he ordered the third floor equipped with Venetian blinds, so the shirt-sleeved draftsmen would not outrage the aesthetic sense of the neighbors.

NOTE—Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, one of REA's neighbors, did not complain.

LUCKY THIRTEEN

Thirteen has been a lucky number for the National Labor Relations board.

Early efforts of that body to referee industrial disputes were frustrated by injunctions, one after another, up to 13. District courts restrained the NLRB even from holding hearings to learn the pros and cons of each dispute.

With 13 restraining orders against it, the board finally got a break. Three circuit courts of appeal reversed lower courts, and held for the NLRB. District judges immediately changed their tune, sided with the NLRB in 39 other injunction suits.

Publicly, Senator Arthur Vandenburg is still maintaining an attitude of good will toward rival Republican presidential candidates. But privately it is a different matter. Following Gov. Alf Landon's recent radio interview, Vandenberg told friends he thought the views expressed by Landon "were terrible" . . . The six-weeks delay in getting approval for the Resettlement administration's widely acclaimed movie, "The Plow that Broke the Plains," was not the fault of Comptroller General J. R. SCIENCE NEWS

Man has shaved himself for many centuries is the belief of most scientists who have gone into the subject very thoroughly, but there has never been any adequate proof that he has done so for any definite period of time. However, bronze razors were recently unearthed near Vienna, Austria, during excavations for a road. Although damaged by erosion and corrosion, experts believed them to be equally as sharp as those used by man today. They are estimated to be 3000 years old.

League Can Go to Work; Military Pretentions Are Gone

MANY people take a ghoulish delight in lambasting the League of Nations, punching it in the nose and kicking it in the slats. They point to the quivering carcass as a monster of iniquity, the sum total of all villainy, the very cesspool of debuached diplomacy. That America escaped its slimy reaches was due to their intelligence, patriotism, with a little favoritism on the part of Providence, which, we are told, keeps a watchful eye on fools, drunks and these United States.

Just why a movement designed to further human good should arouse such passionate resentment is one of those inexplicable things. Something like the opposition against prohibition, adequate old-age security, the New Deal, or the peace movement. To hear some fellows beat the air, one would think that a "pacifist" is the most dangerous creature afoot. He should be forthwith cast behind bars where his own virulent poison would devour himself. Recently, in a meeting I took occasion to protest against some of the indecencies so prevalent about us. Up came the charge of "purist." Now, that sort of accusation ought to silence a person less thickskinned than I.

Detractors of the league gloat over its seeming demise. It was an ill-begotton, misshapen thing anyhow, they say. It never did any good. Did it stop Japan's aggressions in China? Or force Germany to respect the Versailles treaty? Or protect Ethiopia in her tragic struggle? Did it succeed in applying sanctions to Italy? Did it scare any of the baleful crop of dictators which are marshaling their armies across the face of Europe? Did it ever do anything but make confusion more confusing? And so, after we have sniped it in the back for the last 17 years, we wash our hands of the expiring league and call it good riddance.

* * *

But the league is not yet dead. Article XVI of the covenant, guaranteeing territorial integrity, is probably dead. Such a guarantee should never have been included in it. Appeals to force can not be safely lodged with the league. Violence from Geneva is as bad as violence from any other source. No peace can come from such resort to arms.

* * *

But Geneva can now come into its own at a great forum for international discussion. Turning the spotlight on evils is yet the most potent appeal. Shorn of military pretensions the league has a chance to go to work. The British nations, as well as England itself, must continue to back it. France and Russia want it. The Balkan nations want it. Scandinavian peoples want it. All of the nations, even America, will want to be in a good, live debating society.

SIC TRANSIT

To the Editor: If Woodrow Wilson's "spook" is spooking round, how must its poor old heart bleed when it contemplates the wreck of its pet league of nations. It seems like ancient history or a fairy tale, though it happened less than two decades ago, how Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, contrary to all established precedents (and for which he was threatened with impeachment) boarded a floating palace which cost the country several million dollars, and accompanied by a retinue of some 1400 set sail for foreign shores where he was accorded a royal welcome, lodged in the finest palace in the world, thus transferring the seat of government from Washington, U. S. A., to Paris, France, where all the nations of the world feel over each other to do him reverance and sign his league, and returning in triumph with this darling of his heart tucked in his bosom, so to speak, was promptly turned down by his own country.

And then I think what a debt of gratitude we owe to Henry Cabot Lodge for the reservation that saved us from being mixed up in future world wars. And, yes, I think we also owe Wilson thanks for vetoing the bill of acceptance because of the reservation, for had he accepted it we would have been committed to "sanctions" which if adhered to would have inevitably led to war.

But the league fell down on the first major test and now "there are none so poor as to do it reverance." It is just another scrap of paper.

What Other Editors Say

A BITTER MEMORY

(The Ottawa Journal)

We have heard a great deal these months past about the evils of the "old diplomacy." Well, the "old diplomacy," as represented by the Hoare-Laval peace proposals, would have saved at least, a fragment of the Ethiopian empire, would have prevented the slaughter of tens of thousands of Ethiopians in the past three months, would have averted what happened in Addis Ababa on Sunday. As it was, a practical plan for concluding the war was turned down by a wave of emotion, aided by a lot of wishful thinking. We were told—all the "experts" were sure of it—that Italy couldn't possibly conquer Ethiopian within five years; that the rains would bog its armies and disease decimate them; that long before Mussolini's legions sighted Addis Ababa sanctions would have him on his knees. All of which, as we know, was nonsense.

A STEP FORWARD

(Ventura County Star)

At 70, Bishop William T. Manning, interviewed on his recent birthday anniversary, held out a cheerful view of the future.

"Despite the uncertainty and confusion which exist," he declared, "I would say that during my lifetime I have discerned a growth among people generally in social consciousness . . . We may not agree with all the measures toward this end which have been adopted; nevertheless, the general spirit of the times is that men can no longer go along their own ways unmindful of the conditions of others."

In the light of human history, that, indeed is a step forward for humanity.

Along Placentia avenue geophysical tests are being made for oil. Several crews have been working for a number of weeks in an effort to locate oil structures. They get their answer from vibrations. Some few years ago the Standard made a wildcat test near the Wagner property and if they found oil they still know it. The public don't. The Oil and Gas Journal of Tulsa, Oklahoma, in a recent issue, said that if California continued to hold its position as a major oil producing state new production would have to be discovered. I am in favor of the discovery and will furnish two pieces of land if the oil companies will find the oil.

The railroads present a safety record for 1935 which reaches the peak of perfection. Not a passenger's life was lost. Compared with the highways strewn with dead and maimed this record is remarkable. Not only were passengers safely transported, but riding comfort was increased by air-conditioned equipment, and personal service, while rates for dining car service were reduced. Fares for transportation took a downward slant. I was talking with a party yesterday who said it was cheaper to keep the family in transit now than to maintain a home. You can go places faster and safer and cheaper on the railroads than at any other time in the history of American railroads.

Here's a hard luck story. I get 'em every day. Good hearted citizen responded to an appeal from a friend to join him in an oil investment which at the time was returning about $40 per month. It did—for one month. Then the production started to slip and it kept slipping until that investment of $2000 now collects intermittently all the way from 58 cents to a $1.07 per month. Same party fell for another investment of some $4000 under similar circumstances, but this time it was on the stock exchange. In about two weeks this stock was cut in half by the depression, and in about three months it was cut into another half. But this is not news. It's a misfortune.

Maybe Frank Rospaw aspires to be a country weekly syndicate owner. He has added the Seal Beach Post and Wave to his properties. Frank now owns the Placentia Courier. There is a very distinct difference in the personnel and community attitude, Placentia being conservative and Seal Beach ultra liberal. It is a safe bet that the editorial policy of the Courier would not fit in with the Seal Beach train of thought, and visa versa. But I'm not going to worry over that. Rospaw didn't ask me whether he should buy the Seal Beach newspaper, so caveat emptor, old top, and good luck to you.

Just another dog gone to dogland. He was a friend of the children and a sentry for the neighborhood. Somehow or other I've always felt a little safer when I knew there was a dog on guard. Sleep was more natural. The dog carried the responsibility. Not all dogs can be depended upon to act as guardians of slumber, but old Sport in his weak way would yelp out a feeble alarm. He was a comfort and faithful friend of the children, at times a little jealous of their safety when adults were passing, but never vicious. He never failed in his protecting oversight until the vicissitudes of age all but rendered him helpless, and then he would look up into your eyes as if to tell you to get some other dog to take his place. Boy, I've talked to old Sport when I felt like he should have been on relief, and entitled to what comforts old age is able to assimilate. Maybe a dog is man's best friend, but I also think he has a jealous affection for the kiddies.
